Identification program is launched by police

The Sikeston Police Department has joined Operation Identification, a crime prevention program now in use in many cities, according to Chief Leon Culp.

Under the program, the police department loans engraving tools to residents so they can mark their property at home or at work.

It is part of a police drive to cut down on the number of thefts in the city.

The property is marked with the owner's Missouri driver's license number. The number can be traced by police through the computer network which connects the department with the Missouri Department of Revenue in Jefferson City.

Property found or recovered, which has been marked with the driver's license number, can be run through the computer to see who the property belongs to, Culp said.

Identification of stolen property has always been a problem to law enforcement agencies, Culp said. Many times the owner of the property is unable to identify it. By marking property with the number, identification will be made easier, he said.

The engravers may be checked out at the police station, Culp said. In addition to the engraver, police will hand out a personal property inventory sheet.

As each piece of property is engraved, it should be written down on an inventory sheet and the sheet should be put in a safe place, Culp said.

When engraving the property, begin with the letters Mo. OLN and then add the driver's license number, Culp said. The letters indicate the license number is from Missouri, so if the property is recovered out of state, it can be traced back here.

Culp suggested calling the police station to see if an engraver is available before going to the station.

Ford ties tax cut to spending curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, having urged a new tax-cut plan tied to curbs in federal spending, rejected a Republican governor's request for more federal funds and gave him a blunt lecture on balanced budgets.

Ford, who announced plans earlier this week for what he said was "the biggest single tax cut in our history," met Tuesday with seven Appalachian state governors in Knoxville, Tenn., and immediately was confronted with a plea for funds.

West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore told Ford more federal money is needed to keep Appalachian highway projects on schedule. Ford wryly recalled that most of the governors in the room had agreed with a Southern Governors Conference resolution calling for a constitutional amendment requiring balanced federal budgets.

Ford said, "Fellows, we can't have it both ways."

He said the government faces federal deficits in the current fiscal year of up to $70 billion, adding, "If you have back-to-back deficits of $70 billion, you're going to have more and more and more troubles in trying to finance your own state and municipal governments."

As the President was touting his new tax cut and spending curb proposal, his proposal was meeting with dour comments from Congress.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., called Ford's plan "an impossible one."

A Ways and Means subcommittee chairman, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, criticized Ford's proposals to reduce corporate taxes and released figures showing that 142 major corporations paid less than half the standard corporate tax rate of 48 per cent last year. Vanik said eight companies paid no taxes while 18 others paid at a rate of 10 per cent or less.

Ford proposed enactment of $28 million in permanent tax cuts for 1976 if Congress will agree to an identical cut in federal spending. He would require establishment of a $395 billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1.

Under Ford's $28-billion tax-cut plan, individual taxpayers would receive about $2.6 billion more in tax reductions in 1976 than they did in 1975. White House tax tables show that if the plan is enacted, a family of four with an income of $15,000 would pay $287 less in 1976 taxes than it will this year. A family of four with a $20,000 income would pay $310 less in 1976 than in 1975.

The tables show that a single person with a $10,000 income would pay $249 less and a single person earning $20,000 would pay $264 less.

Ullman's committee began work Tuesday on an assortment of bills to revise tax laws, including the Ford plan. Of Ford's demand for a spending ceiling, Ullman asked, "If the President wants a $395-billion budget, why doesn't he submit a $395 billion budget?"

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, appearing before the House panel to explain the Ford proposal, was asked by Ullman, "Are you sitting there with a straight face and saying that Congress can be expected to put a ceiling on a budget it hasn't seen, without knowing

Deaths are ruled murder, suicide

BERNIE — The shooting death of a woman and her son Monday night has been ruled murder and suicide by Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey.

The bodies of Mrs. Maggie Marie Jines, 58, and her son, Jerry Wayne Jines, 27, were found about 9 a.m. Tuesday in their home at 501 Fleming St.

The shootings apparently took place about 10 p.m. Monday night. Police said that Jines had been shot twice in the chest and once in the back with a .22-caliber pistol.

Officers said Mrs. Jines had apparently planned the shootings beforehand.

In a note, she said she had been in ill health, thought she was going to die soon and did not want her son to be left.

So she apparently shot him and then shot herself, police said.

A son-in-law, who lives next door, went to the home Tuesday morning and found the door to the house locked. When he couldn't get in, he realized something was wrong, Rainey said, so the police were called.

Police Chief Arthur Lee and Assistant Chief Tom Hendley conducted the investigation.

Mrs. Jines was born Jan. 27, 1917 to Eugene James and the late Florence Nelson James.

On Nov. 2, 1932 at Parma, she married Elvis Jines, who died Sept. 8, 1971.

Her son was born Jan. 31, 1948 in Parma and had never married.

Mrs. Jines is survived by three daughters, Margaret Forkum of Dexter and Carol Jean Kirkpatrick and Freda Joyce Bridges of Bernie; father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene James of Bernie; four brothers, Leon James of South Elgin, Ill., Delmar James of Elgin, Ill., and Edward and Lester James of Bernie; one

$325,000 suit filed

BENTON — A $325,000 personal injury suit was filed Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court against Art and Wanda Sue Garner by Linda Burnett on behalf of her four-year- old son Jerry Joseph Burnett.

The suit states that on June 16, 1973, young Burnett, then 2 years old suffered serious and permanent injuries as a result of falling into a hole which had been artifically created and filled with water on the Garner property.

The suit further states that the Garners failed to keep the property safe by not having signs posted or having a fence around a hole.

Because of the fall and near drowning, the Burnett child suffered cardiac- respiratory arrest, lack of spontaneous respiration for a period of eight hours, with damage to the central nervous system, and permanent brain damage which required hospitalization and intensive care, the suit states.

In count one, the suit seeks judgement in the amount of $300,000 in damages.

In count two, Linda Burnett seeks $25,000 for expenses for medicines, doctors, x-rays and hospital costs.

Mayors to meet Oct. 14

ORAN---Mayor Kenneth Ransdell, chairman of the Scott County Mayors Association, has issued an appeal to all mayors in the association to attend the next meeting—scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 14 in the city hall at Commerce—for discussion of the Environmental Protection Agency's requirements for 1977 for waste water treatment, how each city will be affected and possible state and federal grants available.

Guests for the meeting will include Rog Natarajan of Jefferson City, representing the

Sikeston collects $13,305

Sikeston collected $13,305.97 in taxes and fees during September, according to City Collector C.W. Martin.

The city collected $206.16 in back real estate taxes, $49.83 in back personal taxes and $15 in back merchants and manufacturers taxes.

License collections totaled $9,098.17, including $9,074.17 in merchants fees and $24 in dog license fees.

Miscellaneous collections totaled $3,936.81, including $42.52 in interest, $1.70 in clerk costs and a $3,892.59 franchise payment from Associated Natural Gas Co.

5 hurt, 4 seriously

Four persons were seriously injured and another received minor injuries in three traffic accidents on area roads Tuesday and early today, the highway patrol announced today.

Helen L. Ray, 30, of Poplar Bluff, driver of a southbound car, and James R. Davis, 46, of Poplar Bluff, driver of a northbound pickup truck, were seriously injured in an accident at 6:55 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 53 one and a half miles south of Poplar Bluff. Both were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when the Ray car made a right turn onto the highway into the path of the pickup truck and struck the truck broadside.

At 6:35 a.m. Tuesday one mile south of Rombauer on Route Z, Patsy R. Darnell, 34, of Rombauer, driver of a southbound car, and a passenger, Naomi Brittian, 59, of Rombauer, were seriously injured in a one-car accident that occurred when the car struck two horses walking on the highway.

The two women also were taken to Doctors hospital.

James E. Tweedy, 26, of Florrisant received minor injuries at 1:10 a.m. today in a one-vehicle accident on Highway 67 five miles north of Coldwater.

The patrol said the accident occurred when Tweedy attempted to pass another vehicle and his car ran off the road and struck an embankment.

He was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital at Fredericktown.

Jury can't reach verdict

BENTON--Jurors in Scott County Circuit Court were unable to reach a decision Tuesday in the trial of Andrew Tomlin Jr. of Sikeston, charged with the Aug. 16 theft of a motorcycle from the Bill Baker home, Sikeston Route One.

Tomlin was charged along with Charles Hutchison of Sikeston. Hutchison told police that he and Tomlin were together in the theft. Hutchison pleaded guilty to the theft earlier, but has not been sentenced.

The defense produced a witness who said he saw Tomlin at the Mall Theater the night the motorcycle was stolen.

Tomlin is currently on parole on federal charges of transporting stolen vehicles across state lines.

The state is expected to ask for a new trial.

Over 2,000 take part in band festival

JACKSON---Twenty-seven bands, composed of about 1,900 players and 160 twirlers, participated in the Jackson Band Festival Tuesday.

The day began at 10:30 a.m. with a parade through downtown, which ended about 11:45 a.m. The afternoon consisted of practice for the mass performance that evening. The night performance began at 7 p.m. at the high school football stadium with a special tribute paid to Raymond F. "Peg" Meyer of CapeGirardeau.

Meyer, who is now retired and living in Cape Girardeau, with his wife was honored for his many contributions to high school instrumental music in the area. He was particularly recognized for starting the beginning instrumental program in 55 area high schools and for his instrument repair business. In addition to making actual repairs, Meyer has written a book, "Band Directors Guide to Instrument Repair". The book is used by some colleges as a textbook and also by area band directors.

Meyer spent the early part of

Attendance declines, employment up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Although attendance at Missouri public schools increased only 13 per cent over the 10-year period ending last year, the number of teachers in the schools jumped by more than 50 per cent, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported Tuesday.

Public school employes numbered 59,700 in Missouri in 1964 while there were 89,788 in the state last year.

"In the last three years of the 10-year period, attendance has declined, but public school employment has continued to increase," the survey said. It based its statement on figures supplied by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The rapid growth in the number of public school employes was only one example the survey gave in its report on how expanding state and local governments are allegedly threatening Missourians with a tax increase.

Using additional statistics from he Census Bureau, the Missouri Division of Accounting, Division of Employment Security and other sources, the survey reported:

—The number of state and local government employes has increased from 137,400 in October of 1964 to 204,594 in the same month last year —a 48.9 per cent increase, while the state's population increased only 8.3 per cent.

—The state payroll rose from $64.4 million to $542.2 million—an increase of nearly 230 per cent.

—Local government employes' payrolls swelled 167 per cent to $1.4 billion.

While the expanding numbers of public school teachers accounted for the greatest increase in employes, in state government the greatest increase in the number of employes and payroll were in higher education and welfare, the survey reported.

In higher education, employment grew from 7,300 in 1964 to 14,593 last year, nearly an increase of 100 per cent. Payroll went from $46.5 million to $176.1 million, an increasee of 279 per cent.

In state welfare oprations, employment grew from 2,400 to 5,667, while payroll for those workers swelled 333 per cent to $41.6 million.

"The upward trends become a particular concern at this time, however, when the state's fiscal situation appears stringent and the demands of local governments for additional revenues are a recurring theme in the news," the survey said. "It is clear that if the upward trends of the past 10 years continue, Missouri taxpayers will be called upon at both the state and local levels to pay higher taxes—further handicapping them in coping with rising inflation."

The survey urged public officials and legislative bodies to take a closer look at their programs and expenditures for them.

"It is, of course, recognized that public employes should be adequately paid. But searching questions can be asked as to levels of employment and whether full value is being received from the expenditure of payroll dollars," the survey said.

The survey describes itself as a governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City. It has 1,500 members representing businesses and professional people.

—The state payroll rose from $64.4 million to $542.2 million—an increase of nearly 230 per cent.

—Local government employes' payrolls swelled 167 per cent to $1.4 billion.

While the expanding numbers of public school teachers accounted for the greatest increase in employes, in state government the greatest increse in the number of employes and payroll were in higher education and welfare, the survey reported.

In higher education, employment grew from 7,300 in 1964 to 14,593 last year, nearly an increase of 100 per cent. Payroll went from $46.5 million to $176.1 million, an increasee of 279 per cent.

In state welfare oprations, employment grew from 2,400 to 5,667, while payroll for those workers swelled 333 per cent to $41.6 million.

"The upward trends become a particular concern at this time, however, when the state's fiscal situation appears stringent and the demands of local governments for additional revenues are a recurring theme in the news," the survey said. "It is clear that if the upward trends of the past 10 years continue, Missouri taxpayers will be called upon at both the state and local levels to pay higher taxes—further handicapping them in coping with rising inflation."

The survey urged public officials and legislative bodies to take a closer look at their programs and expenditures for them.

"It is, of course, recognized that public employes should be adequately paid. But searching questions can be asked as to levels of employment and whether full value is being received from the expenditure of payroll dollars," the survey said.

The survey describes itself as a governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City. It has 1,500 members representing businesses and professional people.

ON USING FORCE AGAINST OPEC

According to a recent report by the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress, any attempt by the United States to break an OPEC oil embargo by military means would involve very high cost and risk coupled with an uncertain chance for success.

The conclusions were based upon a feasibility study entitled "Oil Fields as Military Objectives." It was prepared for the Subcommittee on Investigations of the House Committee on International Relations.

The study assumes a total OPEC embargo, including the non-Arab countries of Nigeria and Venezuela, and contemplates the various military options which the United states might employ to restore our 6.2 million barrel per day import requirement. Military resource requirements are analyzed, as well as prospects for sabotage and Soviet military counterintervention. The study concludes that success would depend upon two prerequisites: only slight damage to key installations by Arab nationals; and Soviet abstinence from armed intervention. "Since neither essential could be assured," the study says, "military operations to rescue the United States (much less its allies) from an airtight embargo would combine high costs with high risks wherever we focused our efforts. This country would so deplete its strategic reserves that little would be left for contingencies elsewhere."

We would not basically disagree with this conclusion. The U.S. use of armed force against OPEC would indeed involve extreme risks. And the need for anything of this sort seems now to be much reduced because of the Sinai agreement and Egypt's sharp turn away from the Soviet Union and toward friendship with the United States. Furthermore, the curtailment of world demand for oil by already very high prices and the new non-OPEC sources of oil soon to come into production on the supply side should work against any further sharp increase in the price of oil.

Nevertheless, armed force still remains the final resort of a nation whose interests are injured to an intolerable degree. We think the veiled and not so veiled warnings to this effect by President Ford and Secretaries Kissinger and Schlesinger have been useful. Let those who might be tempted to use an oil embargo as an instrument of political policy also contemplate the risks — among them being that the victim might react in an extreme manner. To act is one thing. To threaten to act is part of the diplomatic poker game. So far, we have played this card well.

CRIMINALS USING GUNS

The altogether stupid act of pointing a gun at President Ford by a deranged member of the infamous Manson family in California was bound to reactivate the long-standing cries for gun control, gun confiscation, gun registration and the like. The amazing thing is that these demands for so-called "gun control" are coming at the same time, and many times from the same people demanding that police records of criminals and potential criminals be destroyed.

The most immediate and practical answer would be for all government bodies with the power to do so, whether city, municipality, county or state (and the circumstances vary from state to state) to pass "mandatory sentencing" laws. This would mean that anyone who used a gun in the commission of a crime would immediately and automatically go to jail and stay there, with no ifs, and, buts, "plea bargaining," smart lawyers, soft judges, bail, or whatever. Why there has been a reluctance on the part of the liberal Congress of the United States to pass such legislation defies explanation. Several such bills have long been before both House and Senate, and neither body has ever gone beyond the point of 'studying" them. It seems clear that we can wait until that proverbial hot place freezes over before the "liberals" who manipulate Congress are going to act.

This means that the only way we can crack down on criminals using guns is for the people to act, in whatever legal capacity they can, on the level. If, therefore, a given county, or city, or town, in a given state has the authority to enact such laws, then the law should be adopted now which says, very simply, that if you use a gun to commit a crime, you go to jail — period; and that there is NO WAY that you can get out. Make it two years, make it five years, make it ten years, make it whatever necessary to convince the crook, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that using a gun to commit a crime will bring swift, certain, and stern retribution.

Surely this is the better way, rather than taking firearms away from the 99 per cent of law-abiding citizens who are sportsmen, hobbyists, collectors, etc. We don't have to kill the freedonm of everyone in order to cope with the wrongdoing of a few.

LET'S LOOK BEFORE WE LEAP

While certain members of Congress keep pushing for national health service in the U.S., we need to take a look at why, once touted as the world's best sodialized medical care system, Great Britain's state-run National Health Service is going broke.

According to more than 200 doctors from London's St. Thomas' hospital, only a massive transplant of money can save it from collapse.

In a letter to "The Times" of London the physicians point out that "inadequate financing of NHS is leading to a state of crisis...we believe that the collapse of the National Health Service would be a national catastrophe."

The doctors predict "a collapse in the near future unless the community pays more for its health care."

The NHS was founded in 1948, offering free medical care for rich and poor, providing almost every conceivable kind of treatment. Eighty-five per cent of its funding comes from general taxation, but large pay hikes for employes and a 25 per cent inflation have reduced services to the point of despair among patients, doctors, and nurses.

At a recent meeting of the British Medical Association, which represents 25,000 doctors, BMA Chairman Walpole Lewin said flatly: "We need everything we have now just to hold ourselves together."

Last year to keep the National Health Service going, the government appropriated an extra $1.32 billion, but inflation ate most of that up. Health economists estimate that it now needs another $2 billion to survive, but Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor Government insists there is now money to spare.

Meanwhile the man-in-the-street complains about the poor health care he is being taxed to pay for, and the British medical profession casts doubt upon the competency of the many thousands of Indian, Pakistani, and Egyptian physicians who man the British hospitals. And the reason for the latter is that too many of the best British doctors have been emigrating to the U.S., Canada and Australia to get away from socialized medicine.

Let's look before we leap into this trap, even if the politicians make it sound good--for votes.

BOND ACCEPTS EXPENSIVE GIFTS

Hundreds of dollars worth of gifts, including a microwave oven and a grandfather clock, have been accepted from other than personal friends by Gov. Christopher Bond and his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Bond, state records show.

Some of the more expensive items have been donated to the state by the governor while other gifts are being used personally by the Bonds or are stored in the mansion while the governor decides how to dispose of them, according to an inventory provided by the governor.

Gifts to Governor and Mrs. Bond were inventoried and a copy of the list supplied by the governor's staff after more than nine months of repeated requests for the information by The Star.

In an interview Bond said his general policy is to accept gifts only as part of official functions where he is representing the state, such as national and regional governors' conferences. Most of the valuable gift items were received at governors' conferences, he said.

The governor said that because of the ceremonial duties of his office, he must work under less strict ethics rules than he has set for other employees in the executive branch of state government.

Regulations for other employees state:

"No appointed official or state employee shall directly or indirectly solicit accept or agree to accept any gift of money or goods, loans or services, or other profit arrangement for personal benefit under any circumstances which would tend to influence or have the appearance of influencing the manner in which he performs his official duties."

The governor said that while the ethics code he issued for other employees does not specifically prohibit receipt of gifts, he generally would disapprove of valuable items being received by state workers.

But he said that on some occasions it is necessary for governors to accept gift items as part of a ceremony. For instance, the governor said he received a denim jacket recently at the opening of a new plant that manufactures the jackets.

Bond said the receipeof major gifts at past governors conferences is not improper because the gifts come directly from the conference.

"Where they got them is basically their problem, not mine," Bond said.

In most cases the gifts are either donated by businesses and lobby groups seeking favor from the governors or purchased from funds donated to the conference by businesses and lobby groups to finance the meeting. The governor said he does not support giving such lavish gifts at governors conferences and noted that since he has been a member of the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference an effort has been made to eliminate major gift items for the governors.

The conference in February adopted a policy against dispensing personal gifts to governors and their families except souvenirs or mementos of nominal value.

Valuable personal gifts "constitute an unnecessary and burdensome expense without contributing appreciably to either the substance or the spirit of the governors conferences and should not be presented," the policy stated.

The governor said he would not accept gifts if there appeared to be some impropriety of favor sought through them. Bond said he returned to the sender a television set given him shortly after he became governor in 1973. But the governor said he sees nothing improper about soliciting or accepting goods or money for use by the state for such projects as enhancing the executive mansion. Money and objects are being solicited from businesses and individuals through Missouri Mansion preservation, Inc., a not for profit corporation, he said.

Bond said the microwave oven given him at a Republican governors conference has been donated to the state for use at the mansion, as has a Steuben glass trout figure received from another Republican governors meeting.

A grandfather clock received at a meeting of Southern Governors in Alabama is being stored while Bond decides what to do with it. Another clock, a gift of a Japanese senator, is being used by Bond in his personal office in the mansion, as is a bronze steer sculpture received at a Southern Governors meeting in Texas.

A wrist watch given to Mrs. Bond at a Republican governors meeting in New york is being worn by her, according to the inventory supplied by the governor. A fishing rod given to Bond at a conference in Minnesota is being used by the governor, as is a fishing reel presented by Raymore-Peculiar High School.

Other items are used in the governor's office in the capitol or stored in boxes at the Mansion, including dozens of plaques, certificates, medallions, keys to cities, autographed pictures of national and state officials and other souvenirs.

The governor said he recently has been urging groups that ordinarily would give him a plaque or similar memento to instead contribute funds to the mansion preservation group.

The governor said he had adopted no specific policy on handling the dozens of free books sent to the governor's office each year. Some are distributed to his staff, but most eventually will be sent to a library, he said.

IN THE DOG DAYS

From The New York Times

ow come the Dog Days, as the old Romans first called them. Once they were a time of mysterious fevers, when mad dogs ran rabid through the streets and when vipers were quick to strike. Canicula, the Dog Star, was in conjunction with the sun, and Canicula, not the mad dogs, gave the name to the late summer interval.

The old mythis persist, thourgh rabid dogs are rare and far more people die of bee stings than of snake bites. And fatal summer fevers are no longer common. Stagnant ponds may look poisonous, scummed with algae and squirming with insect life, but their water is no more poisonous that any stagnant, turbid water. The poison in those ponds was in their malarial mosquitoes. Now that we have ways to control malaria and yellow fever, the miasma of Dog Days has lost much of the venom that the ancients so feared.

It was also said, in some places, that pond fish don't bite in Dog Days because of something in the air. True, the fish don't bite, but it is because of something in the water, not the air. The water now teems with larvae and wigglers of all kinds, struggling to achieve their final molt and escape into the air on wings. The fish are stuffed to the gills with natural fish food, so why should they be attracted to the angler's hook?

Dog Days now are simply the hot days of early August, when cicadas drone and katydids begin to tune their fiddles, when the field crickets are loud at the roadside and corn pollen scents the air.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kissinger -- The Enemy? National Labor Chiefs warn that Soviets' Brezhnev strangling U.S. economically

SAN FRANCISCO – Among the leaders of labor's super-command council here at the national AFL-CIO convention there is an uneasy feeling that, though the late Nikita Khruschev never did make good his threat to "bury" us, Soviet Communist party secretarry Leonid Brezhnev may well "strangle us economically."

And to virtually all members of the labor movement's 35-man Executive Council the enemy is Henry Kissinger -- with the State Department and President Ford running close seconds (whom the Secretary of State will need before this massive convention finishes dueling with him and calling for his resignation).

Typical of the angry anti-State sentiment is the vignette which grain boycott leader Teddy Gleason, longshoremen's president, passed on to me shortly after the first traditionally preconvention, closed-door session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

"Recently we went down to see Chuck Robinson (Under-secretary of State for economic affairs now in Moscow)," Gleason said furiously. "Robinson had the chief of the department's Soviet desk with him. We had come to complain that Moscow's merchant marine shipping trust was undercutting American shipping rates by 20 per cent.

"Suddenly we hear Robinson's U.S.S. R. expert tell us, 'We need to give the Soviets a break because their ships are smaller and slower than ours.'

"I told him go look out the window. The Russians have the fastest, biggest, most modern merchant fleet on the seas today. They have far more vessels than we have."

And a series of reports here disclosed that the U.S.S.R. is building scores of the newest computerized freighters and tankers. These craft are being constructed on a three-shift, overtime basis anywhere the Russians can place orders – especially in Polish and other satellite yards.

One of these reports came from the American admiral in charge of NATO supply. The admiral was here for a swift visit and sharp warning.

What disturbs the leaders of millions of unionists who work in factories and mills as well as on the waterfronts is the growing fear that detente is having serious, ruinous economic consequences in America.

There is a very specific report here which discloses that American industry must import at least 25 key raw materials to maintain a viable industrialism employing tens of millions of workers. One example is bauxite essential to aluminum production.

Bauxite and the other raw materials must be imported from around the world. What would happen to the U.S. economy if the Soviets controlled the world's merchant shipping? What would happen if our merchant fleet turned into rotting hulks through disuse caused by Soviet undercutting of rates?

The Russians could then decide against transporting the vital cargoes to America. Or they could jack up the established freight rates once they controlled the ocean commerce, just as OPEC nations now are hiking petroleum prices.

Don't think it can't happen here. I was in London Aug. 1 with Tim Bolton, president of the General Council of British shipbuilding. In despair he talked of the Soviets' undercutting the United Kingdom's world shipping companies by 50 per cent and by a "commonplace practice" of underbidding on many regional routes by 30 per cent.

Bolton said this undercutting of rates set by the free world could destroy the British merchant fleet. He added that the Soviets were in desperate need of solid foreign currency. Mostly the dollar. And labor leaders here add that the Russians require it to pay for American grain which they need with a desperation not fully revealed to the world.

Thus the Soviets are beginning to cripple America's merchant fleet by underselling freight space for dollars so they can pay for American grain.

Poland, which has been complaining abut the boycott an moratorium on U.S. grain sales to Warsaw, is constructing vessels for the Russians to kill off our ocean transport.

So it isn't only a matter of grain. Eventually, labor chiefs here are saying, it could be the slowing down of steel plants, the aerospace industry and any mill that uses vital raw materials which must be imported.

All this prompts the spry George Many, chief of chiefs, to charge that "increasingly, detente has become a Western opiate and an Easern stimulant."

And national AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland demands that the U.S. must use our great grain assets as a weapon in this battle, just the oil-producing nations use petroleum.

And for Meany there is more than philosophical antagonism to appeasing the Soviet dictatorship and even more than his desire to save the economy. He sees a naked physical threat to America's existence. In the council's report to the delegates at the AFL-CIO's 20th anniversary convention here, the labor chiefs, after consulting their own confidential documents, said:

"The Soviet arms budget is growing by at least 5 per cent a year. Four new missile systems have been developed."

The council also noted: "The Soviets are violating strategic agreements with the U.S. by building large numbers of new missile silos, testing new ABM technology, perfecting new means of missile concealment and developing mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles systems.

"With 50 per cent more men under arms than the U.S., the Soviets andtheir allies have four times the number of tanks, three times the heavy artillery, twice the number of heavy mortars and as many surface combat ships and three times the number of submarines, all newer and faster than their U.S. counterparts."

So the labor chiefs here say if the Soviets can afford all this, let's at least use our grain weapon wisely. And at a heavy price and with concessions -- from Communist Russia, not from us.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Arab Boycott List

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Some 2,000 American firms, ranging from Ford Motors to small pet shops, have been blacklisted by the Arabs.

The boycott list, identifying allegedly pro-Zionist companies for economic retaliation, was prepared in Lebanon. It is considered more important than earlier lists, because a Lebanese heads the Arab boycott office in Damascus.

A similar list, provided to the Commerce Department by firms that actually were approached by the Arabs, is now the subject of a hot controversy on Capitol Hill.

Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton has refused to surrender the list to Congress, contending that the firms were promised confidentiality. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose investigating committee has demanded the list, is considering whether to cite Morton for contempt.

The Lebanese list was approved Dec. 6, 1974, at a closed cabinet meeting in Beirut. Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., managed to get a copy and showed it to us.

Although this particular boycott list is treated with great gravity by Arab governments, it is curiously haphazard. For example, more than one insignificant pet store and a shoe repair firm are listed. Yet the United Jewish Appeal for the Film Industry has been removed from the list. Perhaps some Arab diplomat or petty sheikh didn't like the service when he stopped to buy a canary or get his shoes heeled.

Some Arab countries, such as Syria and Saudi Arabia, treat the boycott list as if it were taken from the Koran. But in Moricco, say, it is virtually ignored.

Some Arab officials, according to our sources, use the list to extort bribes. For a little "baksheesh," they can be persuaded to ignore the boycott.

Such firms as General Electric, Miles Laboratories, Trans World Airlines and the Hilton hotel chain are active in Israel. Yet they still manage to do business in the Arab world.

The 2,000 blacklisted firms cover every facet of U.S. business, with special emphasis on communications companies. Such firms as CBS, NBC, United Artists and Otto Preminger Films are on the list.

A number of liquor companies, led by Calvert and Seagrams, are also listed, although Arabs supposedly don't drink and, therefore, should have no need to import liquor.

The U.S. oil industry, predictably, has all but escaped the boycott. Other companies have been removed from the boycott list, including Kaiser Steel, General Paper, General Tire, Monsanto, RKO General and a Yugoslav sewing machine plant.

A few of the blacklisted organizations and products include:

B'nai B'rith, Brush On Eye Shadow, Coca Cola, Connecticut Mutual Insurance, Hartz Mountain pet foods, Hertz, Knopf and Random House books, Moon Drops, Laurance Rockefeller Associates, Republic Steel, Allstate Insurance, Bergdorf Goodman, Ronrico gold and white rum, Lazard Freres investments and Leeds Music. Also Minkus stamps, Motorola, Playtex, Pratt and Whitney, Republic Pictures, Topps Chewing Gum, Xerox, Zenith Radio, Aetna Casualty, American Doll and Toy, American Electric Power, Beaunit Mills, Botany Mills, Bulova watches, Fairbanks Morse, Golden Bear oil, Harry Winston jewelers, Helena Rubinstein (listed three times, with two misspellings), Israel Numismatic Service and Jewish War Veterans.

Footnote: About 99 out of every 100 blacklisted firms are American. But companies were also boycotted in Britain, Taiwan, Tanzania, Tukey, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

"I would get it myself," she wrote, "but I am presently incarcerated in the Sacramento county jail."

This means that the only way we can crack down on criminals using guns is for the people to act, in whatever legal capacity they can, on the level. If, therefore, a given county, or city, or town, in a given state has the authority to enact such laws, then the law should be adopted now which says, very simply, that if you use a gun to commit a crime, you go to jail — period; and that there is NO WAY that you can get out. Make it two years, make it five years, make it ten years, make it whatever necessary to convince the crook, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that using a gun to commit a crime will bring swift, certain, and stern retribution.

Surely this is the better way, rather than taking firearms away from the 99 per cent of law-abiding citizens who are sportsmen, hobbyists, collectors, etc. We don't have to kill the freedonm of everyone in order to cope with the wrongdoing of a few.

"That's some stew you're in!"

LET'S LOOK BEFORE WE LEAP

While certain members of Congress keep pushing for national health service in the U.S., we need to take a look at why, once touted as the world's best sodialized medical care system, Great Britain's state-run National Health Service is going broke.

According to more than 200 doctors from London's St. Thomas' hospital, only a massive transplant of money can save it from collapse.

In a letter to "The Times" of London the physicians point out that "inadequate financing of NHS is leading to a state of crisis...we believe that the collapse of the National Health Service would be a national catastrophe."

The doctors predict "a collapse in the near future unless the community pays more for its health care."

The NHS was founded in 1948, offering free medical care for rich and poor, providing almost every conceivable kind of treatment. Eighty-five per cent of its funding comes from general taxation, but large pay hikes for employes and a 25 per cent inflation have reduced services to the point of despair among patients, doctors, and nurses.

At a recent meeting of the British Medical Association, which represents 25,000 doctors, BMA Chairman Walpole Lewin said flatly: "We need everything we have now just to hold ourselves together."

Last year to keep the National Health Service going, the government appropriated an extra $1.32 billion, but inflation ate most of that up. Health economists estimate that it now needs another $2 billion to survive, but Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor Government insists there is now money to spare.

Meanwhile the man-in-the-street complains about the poor health care he is being taxed to pay for, and the British medical profession casts doubt upon the competency of the many thousands of Indian, Pakistani, and Egyptian physicians who man the British hospitals. And the reason for the latter is that too many of the best British doctors have been emigrating to the U.S., Canada and Australia to get away from socialized medicine.

Let's look before we leap into this trap, even if the politicians make it sound good--for votes.

BOND ACCEPTS EXPENSIVE GIFTS

Hundreds of dollars worth of gifts, including a microwave oven and a grandfather clock, have been accepted from other than personal friends by Gov. Christopher Bond and his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Bond, state records show.

Some of the more expensive items have been donated to the state by the governor while other gifts are being used personally by the Bonds or are stored in the mansion while the governor decides how to dispose of them, according to an inventory provided by the governor.

Gifts to Governor and Mrs. Bond were inventoried and a copy of the list supplied by the governor's staff after more than nine months of repeated requests for the information by The Star.

In an interview Bond said his general policy is to accept gifts only as part of official functions where he is representing the state, such as national and regional governors' conferences. Most of the valuable gift items were received at governors' conferences, he said.

The governor said that because of the ceremonial duties of his office, he must work under less strict ethics rules than he has set for other employees in the executive branch of state government.

Regulations for other employees state:

"No appointed official or state employee shall directly or indirectly solicit accept or agree to accept any gift of money or goods, loans or services, or other profit arrangement for personal benefit under any circumstances which would tend to influence or have the appearance of influencing the manner in which he performs his official duties."

The governor said that while the ethics code he issued for other employees does not specifically prohibit receipt of gifts, he generally would disapprove of valuable items being received by state workers.

But he said that on some occasions it is necessary for governors to accept gift items as part of a ceremony. For instance, the governor said he received a denim jacket recently at the opening of a new plant that manufactures the jackets.

Bond said the receipeof major gifts at past governors conferences is not improper because the gifts come directly from the conference.

"Where they got them is basically their problem, not mine," Bond said.

In most cases the gifts are either donated by businesses and lobby groups seeking favor from the governors or purchased from funds donated to the conference by businesses and lobby groups to finance the meeting. The governor said he does not support giving such lavish gifts at governors conferences and noted that since he has been a member of the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference an effort has been made to eliminate major gift items for the governors.

The conference in February adopted a policy against dispensing personal gifts to governors and their families except souvenirs or mementos of nominal value.

Valuable personal gifts "constitute an unnecessary and burdensome expense without contributing appreciably to either the substance or the spirit of the governors conferences and should not be presented," the policy stated.

The governor said he would not accept gifts if there appeared to be some impropriety of favor sought through them. Bond said he returned to the sender a television set given him shortly after he became governor in 1973. But the governor said he sees nothing improper about soliciting or accepting goods or money for use by the state for such projects as enhancing the executive mansion. Money and objects are being solicited from businesses and individuals through Missouri Mansion preservation, Inc., a not for profit corporation, he said.

Bond said the microwave oven given him at a Republican governors conference has been donated to the state for use at the mansion, as has a Steuben glass trout figure received from another Republican governors meeting.

A grandfather clock received at a meeting of Southern Governors in Alabama is being stored while Bond decides what to do with it. Another clock, a gift of a Japanese senator, is being used by Bond in his personal office in the mansion, as is a bronze steer sculpture received at a Southern Governors meeting in Texas.

A wrist watch given to Mrs. Bond at a Republican governors meeting in New york is being worn by her, according to the inventory supplied by the governor. A fishing rod given to Bond at a conference in Minnesota is being used by the governor, as is a fishing reel presented by Raymore-Peculiar High School.

Other items are used in the governor's office in the capitol or stored in boxes at the Mansion, including dozens of plaques, certificates, medallions, keys to cities, autographed pictures of national and state officials and other souvenirs.

The governor said he recently has been urging groups that ordinarily would give him a plaque or similar memento to instead contribute funds to the mansion preservation group.

The governor said he had adopted no specific policy on handling the dozens of free books sent to the governor's office each year. Some are distributed to his staff, but most eventually will be sent to a library, he said.

IN THE DOG DAYS

ow come the Dog Days, as the old Romans first called them. Once they were a time of mysterious fevers, when mad dogs ran rabid through the streets and when vipers were quick to strike. Canicula, the Dog Star, was in conjunction with the sun, and Canicula, not the mad dogs, gave the name to the late summer interval.

The old mythis persist, thourgh rabid dogs are rare and far more people die of bee stings than of snake bites. And fatal summer fevers are no longer common. Stagnant ponds may look poisonous, scummed with algae and squirming with insect life, but their water is no more poisonous that any stagnant, turbid water. The poison in those ponds was in their malarial mosquitoes. Now that we have ways to control malaria and yellow fever, the miasma of Dog Days has lost much of the venom that the ancients so feared.

It was also said, in some places, that pond fish don't bite in Dog Days because of something in the air. True, the fish don't bite, but it is because of something in the water, not the air. The water now teems with larvae and wigglers of all kinds, struggling to achieve their final molt and escape into the air on wings. The fish are stuffed to the gills with natural fish food, so why should they be attracted to the angler's hook?

Dog Days now are simply the hot days of early August, when cicadas drone and katydids begin to tune their fiddles, when the field crickets are loud at the roadside and corn pollen scents the air.

UNKNOWN BEST SELLER

It is pitiful how few people know the most popular chapters and paragraphs in the Bible. In our older age we watch a lot of TV quiz shows and we'd say few people can give a quotation from the Bible or say whether it was negative or positive, than have the right answer. During the Sunday School years of these people, what were their parents doing not insisting they attend, and going themselves. A knowledge of the Bible will not bring salvation, but no one is education who does not know well be the best known book in the world.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kissinger -- The Enemy? National Labor Chiefs warn that Soviets' Brezhnev strangling U.S. economically

SAN FRANCISCO – Among the leaders of labor's super-command council here at the national AFL-CIO convention there is an uneasy feeling that, though the late Nikita Khruschev never did make good his threat to "bury" us, Soviet Communist party secretarry Leonid Brezhnev may well "strangle us economically."

And to virtually all members of the labor movement's 35-man Executive Council the enemy is Henry Kissinger -- with the State Department and President Ford running close seconds (whom the Secretary of State will need before this massive convention finishes dueling with him and calling for his resignation).

Typical of the angry anti-State sentiment is the vignette which grain boycott leader Teddy Gleason, longshoremen's president, passed on to me shortly after the first traditionally preconvention, closed-door session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

"Recently we went down to see Chuck Robinson (Undersecretary of State for economic affairs now in Moscow)," Gleason said furiously. "Robinson had the chief of the department's Soviet desk with him. We had come to complain that Moscow's merchant marine shipping trust was undercutting American shipping rates by 20 per cent.

"Suddenly we hear Robinson's U.S.S. R. expert tell us, 'We need to give the Soviets a break because their ships are smaller and slower than ours.'

"I told him go look out the window. The Russians have the fastest, biggest, most modern merchant fleet on the seas today. They have far more vessels than we have."

And a series of reports here disclosed that the U.S.S.R. is building scores of the newest computerized freighters and tankers. These craft are being constructed on a three-shift, overtime basis anywhere the Russians can place orders – especially in Polish and other satellite yards.

One of these reports came from the American admiral in charge of NATO supply. The admiral was here for a swift visit and sharp warning.

What disturbs the leaders of millions of unionists who work in factories and mills as well as on the waterfronts is the growing fear that detente is having serious, ruinous economic consequences in America.

There is a very specific report here which discloses that American industry must import at least 25 key raw materials to maintain a viable industrialism employing tens of millions of workers. One example is bauxite essential to aluminum production.

Bauxite and the other raw materials must be imported from around the world. What would happen to the U.S. economy if the Soviets controlled the world's merchant shipping? What would happen if our merchant fleet turned into rotting hulks through disuse caused by Soviet undercutting of rates?

The Russians could then decide against transporting the vital cargoes to America. Or they could jack up the established freight rates once they controlled the ocean commerce, just as OPEC nations now are hiking petroleum prices.

Don't think it can't happen here. I was in London Aug. 1 with Tim Bolton, president of the General Council of British shipbuilding. In despair he talked of the Soviets' undercutting the United Kingdom's world shipping companies by 50 per cent and by a "commonplace practice" of underbidding on many regional routes by 30 per cent.

Bolton said this undercutting of rates set by the free world could destroy the British merchant fleet. He added that the Soviets were in desperate need of solid foreign currency. Mostly the dollar. And labor leaders here add that the Russians require it to pay for American grain which they need with a desperation not fully revealed to the world.

Thus the Soviets are beginning to cripple America's merchant fleet by underselling freight space for dollars so they can pay for American grain.

Poland, which has been complaining abut the boycott an moratorium on U.S. grain sales to Warsaw, is constructing vessels for the Russians to kill off our ocean transport.

So it isn't only a matter of grain. Eventually, labor chiefs here are saying, it could be the slowing down of steel plants, the aerospace industry and any mill that uses vital raw materials which must be imported.

All this prompts the spry George Many, chief of chiefs, to charge that "increasingly, detente has become a Western opiate and an Easern stimulant."

And national AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland demands that the U.S. must use our great grain assets as a weapon in this battle, just the oil-producing nations use petroleum.

And for Meany there is more than philosophical antagonism to appeasing the Soviet dictatorship and even more than his desire to save the economy. He sees a naked physical threat to America's existence. In the council's report to the delegates at the AFL-CIO's 20th anniversary convention here, the labor chiefs, after consulting their own confidential documents, said:

"The Soviet arms budget is growing by at least 5 per cent a year. Four new missile systems have been developed."

The council also noted: "The Soviets are violating strategic agreements with the U.S. by building large numbers of new missile silos, testing new ABM technology, perfecting new means of missile concealment and developing mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles systems.

"With 50 per cent more men under arms than the U.S., the Soviets andtheir allies have four times the number of tanks, three times the heavy artillery, twice the number of heavy mortars and as many surface combat ships and three times the number of submarines, all newer and faster than their U.S. counterparts."

So the labor chiefs here say if the Soviets can afford all this, let's at least use our grain weapon wisely. And at a heavy price and with concessions -- from Communist Russia, not from us.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Arab Boycott List
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Some 2,000 American firms, ranging from Ford Motors to small pet shops, have been blacklisted by the Arabs.

The boycott list, identifying allegedly pro-Zionist companies for economic retaliation, was prepared in Lebanon. It is considered more important than earlier lists, because a Lebanese heads the Arab boycott office in Damascus.

A similar list, provided to the Commerce Department by firms that actually were approached by the Arabs, is now the subject of a hot controversy on Capitol Hill.

Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton has refused to surrender the list to Congress, contending that the firms were promised confidentiality. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose investigating committee has demanded the list, is considering whether to cite Morton for contempt.

The Lebanese list was approved Dec. 6, 1974, at a closed cabinet meeting in Beirut. Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., managed to get a copy and showed it to us.

Although this particular boycott list is treated with great gravity by Arab governments, it is curiously haphazard. For example, more than one insignificant pet store and a shoe repair firm are listed. Yet the United Jewish Appeal for the Film Industry has been removed from the list. Perhaps some Arab diplomat or petty sheikh didn't like the service when he stopped to buy a canary or get his shoes heeled.

Some Arab countries, such as Syria and Saudi Arabia, treat the boycott list as if it were taken from the Koran. But in Moricco, say, it is virtually ignored.

Some Arab officials, according to our sources, use the list to extort bribes. For a little "baksheesh," they can be persuaded to ignore the boycott.

Such firms as General Electric, Miles Laboratories, Trans World Airlines and the Hilton hotel chain are active in Israel. Yet they still manage to do business in the Arab world.

The 2,000 blacklisted firms cover every facet of U.S. business, with special emphasis on communications companies. Such firms as CBS, NBC, United Artists and Otto Preminger Films are on the list.

A number of liquor companies, led by Calvert and Seagrams, are also listed, although Arabs supposedly don't drink and, therefore, should have no need to import liquor.

The U.S. oil industry, predictably, has all but escaped the boycott. Other companies have been removed from the boycott list, including Kaiser Steel, General Paper, General Tire, Monsanto, RKO General and a Yugoslav sewing machine plant.

A few of the blacklisted organizations and products include:

B'nai B'rith, Brush On Eye Shadow, Coca Cola, Connecticut Mutual Insurance, Hartz Mountain pet foods, Hertz, Knopf and Random House books, Moon Drops, Laurance Rockefeller Associates, Republic Steel, Allstate Insurance, Bergdorf Goodman, Ronrico gold and white rum, Lazard Freres investments and Leeds Music. Also Minkus stamps, Motorola, Playtex, Pratt and Whitney, Republic Pictures, Topps Chewing Gum, Xerox, Zenith Radio, Aetna Casualty, American Doll and Toy, American Electric Power, Beaunit Mills, Botany Mills, Bulova watches, Fairbanks Morse, Golden Bear oil, Harry Winston jewelers, Helena Rubinstein (listed three times, with two misspellings), Israel Numismatic Service and Jewish War Veterans.

Footnote: About 99 out of every 100 blacklisted firms are American. But companies were also boycotted in Britain, Taiwan, Tanzania, Tukey, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

MAIL BAG: We received a letter last week from Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, one of President Ford's would-be assassins. She wanted to be put in touch with Dr. John Gofman, a noted nuclear physicist, whose warnings against nuclear power development we had published. Squeaky sought some information from Dr. Gofman. "I would get it myself," she wrote, "but I am presently incarcerated in the Sacramento county jail."

-- We reported last month that the FBI's computer center had been misused to hunt down non-criminals. One of the victims, Eric Staubes of Binghampton, N.Y., wrote to us about his experience. He was confronted with a computer printout 14 feet long. Police grilled him for six hours. He was wanted in two states, they charged, on 14 counts of auto theft. They claimed he had 40 aliases. It turned out that the supposedly foolproof computer system had fingered the wrong man. "Do you get the feeling Big Brother is watching?" Staubes asked us.

-- A Denver man, who asked not to be identified, has sent us his correspondence with the Postal Service over a lost money order. Exasperated, he finally decided to file a class action suit and wrote the Justice Department for background in formation. The letter was returned to him, stamped "Unable to Locate," by the mailman.

Many factors cause fatigue

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 20 years old and have been working for more than a year. I quit my job more than two months ago when I began experiencing unusual fatigue. Since then I have taken vitamin tablets and resisted much exertion, but I do not get much relief.

I have had blood tests and urine analysis, but all tests prove negative. I was wondering if it is possible that I have built up too much lactic acid and nitrogenous waste in my body from constant pushing without proper rest. Is this possible? Also, could it be possible in such a case that brain damage could have occurred from lack of rest and oxygen to the brain?

DEAR READER — I presume you have had a medical examination if you have had blood and urine tests.

Fatigue is caused by many factors. Not all of them are related to a specific disease or abnormal function of the body parts. You must not be anemic and a lot of other medical conditions can be ruled out by urine and blood tests. Often fatigue is caused by psychological factors. That is why a change in scenery or a vacation often gives a person a lift, even if he is more active during the change.

Anyone with fatigue must have a complete medical examination to rule out low thyroid function, other endocrine diseases, chronic illness, anemia and other important medical problems.

Poor nutrition can lead to fatigue. However, vitamins will not help unless you are actually deficient in vitamins from poor eating habits. Vitamins do not contain energy. They enable your body to break down your food and release food energy. The energy is in the food and is really solar energy trapped there at some point in the development of food. Even the energy in a piece of meat comes from solar energy obtained from plant food.

Lactic acid is formed in muscles when your physical effort exceeds the circulation's ability to provide enough oxygen to break down food and release energy. This is a short, temporary effect, and as soon as you rest, the normal oxygen supply from your normal circulation will convert the lactic acid, and it is no longer important. I do not think lactic acid accumulation is your problem.

For a better understanding of the effects of exercise and physical work, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents, a long, stamped self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 1-9, Exercise, Muscles.

You won't get brain damage from physical work. The brain will use about the same amount of oxygen whether you are working or resting. An adequate amount of oxygen gets to the brain even during physical work.

Since you are only 20 and have this degree of difficulty I think you should try to resolve it. You may need some professional counseling to look at the psychological factors involved and how to cope with them.

You should also look to your life style. It may well be that what you really need is a fitness program and proper nutrition. Exercise may actually help you build up your strength and thereby gain some energy. Also look at your cigarette, coffee, cola and alcohol habit. All of these can sap your energy. You would be surprised how many people develop more energy by stopping cigarette smoking.

Former area resident writes biography

CHARLESTON — A new biography of Rosco Pound, by Dr. David W Wigdor of Washington D.C., a former Charleston resident, heads this week's list of new books at the Mississippi County Library.

Dr. Wigdor, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wigdor of Charleston, is a graduate of Charleston High School and holds a doctorate from University of Missouri-Columbia.

He recently has been named American history specialist at the Library of Congress in Washington, after working for several years with the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Wigdor served as a combat historian in Vietnam and taught at Lindenwood College in St. Charles. His special interest is American legal history, and he is preparing a study of the juvenile court movement.

The biography, 'Rosco Pound: Philosopher of Law'', is published by Greenwood Press of Westport, Conn., as No. 33 in its series, "Contributions in American History". The book is the first comprehensive biography of Pound, who was one of the modern America's most influential legal minds.

What's the law?

The case of the curvaceious barmaid

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

While it was legal to serve women at bars, you had to bring your own, under state law, if you wanted to talk to one in a tavern. Specifically, state law prohibited female employes from fraternizing with male customers and this outraged Selma, a shapely barmaid. In fact, she attacked the validity of the law in court.

"I work in the Dry Gultch Saloon," she told a judge, "and I resent being treated like I can't be trusted. If male employes can socialize with customers of the opposite sex, women should have the same privilege. While there are some men who think women can't be trusted too far . . . there's an equal number of women who believe that men can't be trusted too near."

"Since promiscuity in taverns is decidedly a female trait," responded the state's attorney, "the statute is both reasonable and necessary. If women want to fraternize, they should work in a tea room where chastity doesn't think Cupid is stupid."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the state law?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a state legislature may rationally assume that most prostitutes are female and that promiscuous sexual activity sometimes stems from contacts made in bars, these assumptions do not support broader assumptions concerning propensities thought to exist in some members of a given sex."

Fifty-six For Freedom

A Series of Vignettes About the Fifty-six Signers of the Declaration of Independence. A Missouri Press Association Feature for the Bicentennial.

Thos Nelson jr.

'As a member of the Virginia Council, in March 1775, Thomas Nelson, Jr., asked for the floor and said, "I am a merchant of Yorktown but I am a Virginian first. Let my trade perish. I call God to witness that if any British troops are landed in the County of York, of which I am lieutenant, I will wait for no orders, but will summon the militia and drive the invaders to the sea." In 1777 Nelson resigned from Congress because his health was declining. In 1778 at the request of Congress, Nelson, partially at his own expense, raised, outfitted, and trained a light cavalry. He served in Congress for a short time in 1779 but poor health forced him to retire once more. He solicited funds and raised $2 million from wealthy Virginia plantation owners to whom he pledged to repay personally if the State should fail to do so. Sadly, the government repaid him. In September-October 1781 as Governor of Virginia and commander of the militia, while taking part in the siege of Yorktown with Washington and Lafayette, he ordered patriot troops to shell his own mansion when he learned it was a British headquarter. A few days later, the British General Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown--which virtually ended the Revolutionary War. Nelson was left penniless and his family deep in debt when he died at the age of 50. 14

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 20 years old and have been working for more than a year. I quit my job more than two months ago when I began experiencing unusual fatigue. Since then I have taken vitamin tablets and resisted much exertion, but I do not get much relief.

I have had blood tests and urine analysis, but all tests prove negative. I was wondering if it is possible that I have built up too much lactic acid and nitrogenous waste in my body from constant pushing without proper rest. Is this possible? Also, could it be possible in such a case that brain damage could have occurred from lack of rest and oxygen to the brain?

DEAR READER — I presume you have had a medical examination if you have had blood and urine tests.

Fatigue is caused by many factors. Not all of them are related to a specific disease or abnormal function of the body parts. You must not be anemic and a lot of other medical conditions can be ruled out by urine and blood tests. Often fatigue is caused by psychological factors. That is why a change in scenery or a vacation often gives a person a lift, even if he is more active during the change.

Anyone with fatigue must have a complete medical examination to rule out low thyroid function, other endocrine diseases, chronic illness, anemia and other important medical problems.

Poor nutrition can lead to fatigue. However, vitamins will not help unless you are actually deficient in vitamins from poor eating habits. Vitamins do not contain energy. They enable your body to break down your food and release food energy. The energy is in the food and is really solar energy trapped there at some point in the development of food. Even the energy in a piece of meat comes from solar energy obtained from plant food.

Lactic acid is formed in muscles when your physical effort exceeds the circulation's ability to provide enough oxygen to break down food and release energy. This is a short, temporary effect, and as soon as you rest, the normal oxygen supply from your normal circulation will convert the lactic acid, and it is no longer important. I do not think lactic acid accumulation is your problem.

For a better understanding of the effects of exercise and physical work, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents, a long, stamped self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 1-9, Exercise, Muscles.

You won't get brain damage from physical work. The brain will use about the same amount of oxygen whether you are working or resting. An adequate amount of oxygen gets to the brain even during physical work.

Since you are only 20 and have this degree of difficulty I think you should try to resolve it. You may need some professional counseling to look at the psychological factors involved and how to cope with them.

You should also look to your life style. It may well be that what you really need is a fitness program and proper nutrition. Exercise may actually help you build up your strength and thereby gain some energy. Also look at your cigarette, coffee, cola and alcohol habit. All of these can sap your energy. You would be surprised how many people develop more energy by stopping cigarette smoking.

Former area resident writes biography

CHARLESTON — A new biography of Rosco Pound, by Dr. David W Wigdor of Washington D.C., a former Charleston resident, heads this week's list of new books at the Mississippi County Library.

Dr. Wigdor, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wigdor of Charleston, is a graduate of Charleston High School and holds a doctorate from University of Missouri-Columbia.

He recently has been named American history specialist at the Library of Congress in Washington, after working for several years with the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Wigdor served as a combat historian in Vietnam and taught at Lindenwood College in St. Charles. His special interest is American legal history, and he is preparing a study of the juvenile court movement.

The biography, 'Rosco Pound: Philosopher of Law'', is published by Greenwood Press of Westport, Conn., as No. 33 in its series, "Contributions in American History". The book is the first comprehensive biography of Pound, who was one of the modern America's most influential legal minds.

SUN CITY?

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the fact that there are three cloudy days and two partly cloudy days here for every clear one, New York is one of the first cities where solar energy may be economically feasible.

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

While it was legal to serve women at bars, you had to bring your own, under state law, if you wanted to talk to one in a tavern. Specifically, state law prohibited female employes from fraternizing with male customers and this outraged Selma, a shapely barmaid. In fact, she attacked the validity of the law in court.

"I work in the Dry Gultch Saloon," she told a judge, "and I resent being treated like I can't be trusted. If male employes can socialize with customers of the opposite sex, women should have the same privilege. While there are some men who think women can't be trusted too far . . . there's an equal number of women who believe that men can't be trusted too near."

"Since promiscuity in taverns is decidedly a female trait," responded the state's attorney, "the statute is both reasonable and necessary. If women want to fraternize, they should work in a tea room where chastity doesn't think Cupid is stupid."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the state law?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a state legislature may rationally assume that most prostitutes are female and that promiscuous sexual activity sometimes stems from contacts made in bars, these assumptions do not support broader assumptions concerning propensities thought to exist in some members of a given sex."

(Based upon a 1975 United States Court of Appeals Decision)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elton John has been booked to play Dodger Stadium, the first pop act since the Beatles were there in 1966. The show will be on the afternoon of Oct. 25 and will be part of John's West Coast tour.

The stage for the concert will be in center field and 55,000 persons will be the audience limit. Tickets will be priced at $10 and sold by mail order only.

Prowler reported

DEXTER—A prowler was reported to police at 4:05 a.m. today by Mrs. Edith Nelson, 805 W. Main St.

When police answered the call, no one could be found.

Break-in reported in Oran

ORAN — A break-in was reported today to Oran police by Robey LeGrand, manager of the Mid-Florida Mining Co. office.

The office was broken into between 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today. Entry was apparently gained by prying open a window.

One item reported taken was a new calculator valued at $249, which had just been purchased four days prior to the break-in.

Oran police are continuing their investigation.

Fast Silk

"The Silks" were Canadian Pacific's famous transcontinental trains (1899-1930) which broke all speed records while carrying bales of precious silk to clothing manufacturers in the East. Brought to Vancouver on liners from Shanghai, the bales were swiftly sorted and sealed into specially built cars. Carefully selected crews and armed guards protected cargoes worth as much as $6 million.

QUOTABLE "It is designed that the country shall be furnished once a month (or, if any glut of occurrances happen, oftener) with an account of such considerable things as have arrived unto our notice." — Benjamin Harris, editor, in the salutary message of America's earliest newspaper, Public Occurences. The date was 1690. Considerable things seem to keep on happening; newspapers continue to report them best.

Shorten schooling year or more , says former commissioner

WASHINGTON (AP) — American schools provide more formal education than a student needs, and high school or college should be shortened by a year or more, says a former U.S. commissioner of education.

Harold Howe II, who held the top education post from 1965 to 1968, also said Tuesday that adults should be allowed a year or more of education later in life.

Speaking at a four-day conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center, Howe, now a vice president of the Ford Foundation, said that 16 years of U.S. education — starting at age 6 and ending at 21 — is a luxury no other country has.

"People get fed up with classrooms after being in them for 16 years," he said, adding that it would be preferable for adults to be allowed a year of formal education at government expense when they are more mature and in a better position to appreciate it.

Howe also said he suspects television is responsible for the decline in national test scores among students.

"No one knows why the scores are going down," he said. "But we're now seeing a generation that has bee watching television throughout its lifetime."

He added that many children watch TV four to six hours a day while children from lower-income families watch even more.

Howe predicted that when schools are asked where the fault of lower test scores lie, they will respond with a "back-to-basics" movement and by becoming more strict.

"They'll regiment kids and force learning down their throats," he said. "And kids will do what they've always done — throw it up."

In other comments, Howe said he thinks the women's movement will have a growing impact on the nation's schools.

"Some think it's a fad and will disappear," he said. "I disagree. I think it's a major movement in American society. It's a large scale enterprise that will affect textbooks, guidance and staffing in the schools, particularly at upper levels — principals and superintendents. The models kids usually see now are men."

Jupiter's 14th moon discovery claimed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not like the discovery of America; it's more like the discovery of Catalina Island," says astronomer Charles Kowal, who claims he has found a 14th moon of the planet Jupiter.

The new moon is just a speck, about four miles across and 400 million miles from earth, but it's only the 34th known moon in our solar system and the second such discovery since 1951.

Kowal, 34, an astronomer for the Hale Observatory near San Diego, also found Jupiter's 13th moon, and his latest discovery was reported Tuesday in a telephone interview.

How was a moon able to escape detection for so long?

"There are a lot of unknown things in the universe," Kowal said. "You just can't look at all of them. And partly it's a matter of fashion. Exotic things like quasars and black holes are fashionable right now and satellites are not."

Kowal made the discovery with a 200-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar Obsevatory, about 120 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

BALAP board

Public elections scheduled for low-income members

CARUTHERSVILLE — Public elections for low-income members of the board of directors of the Bootheel Area Legal Assistance Program (BALAP) will be held in New Madrid and Parma at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

The polling places will be the New Madrid Housing Authority, 550 Line St., New Madrid, and the Parma Community Building.

All residents of New Madrid County who are eligible for legal aid services from BALAP are urged to attend and vote.

Three New Madrid County residents will be elected to the BALAP board, as will three each from Dunklin and Pemiscot counties. In addition, the nine publicly elected board members will choose six more board members who will be attorneys or employes of agencies working with the poor.

Elections in Pemiscot County will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 14 at the Area Opportunity Center in Caruthersville and at the elementary school at Third and Washington in Hayti. In Dunklin County, the elections will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 in the Bank of Kennett meeting room and at the Malden Community Building.

Eligible voters may vote at either of the two polling places in the county they live in, and they will vote only for representatives of their home county.

For additional information, call the BALAP office, telephone number 333-4076.

Bernie survey for cable TV interest planned

BERNIE — The city will conduct a survey, probably starting next week, to determine how many residents are interested in cable television, City Clerk Maxine Foster said today.

Cotton Hill Cablevision Inc. of Malden presented the City Council a fact sheet Monday night, but the council took no action.

Mrs. Foster said the council will wait until results of the survey have been received before making any decision.

No other company has expressed an interest in supplying service to the city, Mrs. Foster said.

The council Monday night hired Lloyd Stafford as a temporary employe if he qualifies under the public service employe program in which the state government reimburses the city for hiring the worker.

Also hired was Edward Robertson, as a probationary police officer.

It was announced that City Collector Ruth Nichols has made out the tax bills and will mail them out next week.

The taxes become due Nov. 1 and become delinquent Jan. 1.

The council is also looking into other possibility of getting an emergency medical technician course for Bernie and purchasing a fire-proof vault for the city hall.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Dear Charlie,

I'd like to use your paper as a way to thank the good people of Sikeston for their support of the Class of 76's Chili Supper which was held on Oct. 3rd. The turnout was beyond our expectations. The cooperation we got from the school officials, mainly, Bob Buchannon and Mrs. Lawrence, was wonderful, we can't thank them enough. The ladies who served on the Committee all did more than their share of work. Then, there were the parents of the Seniors who contributed toward the supplies, and the fourteen mothers who chopped and donated onions and helped make the profit greater.

After seeing how those Seniors got out and sold tickets and then came to work, and the efficient way they conducted the Supper, made us realize that the future of this Country is in good hands. Again, thank you all, who supported this effort, and you too Charlie, for helping me to get the message to them.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. E.B. Hutchison

Prowler reported

DEXTER--A prowler was reported to police at 4:05 a.m. today by Mrs. Edith Nelson, 805 W. Main St.

When police answered the call, no one could be found.

Break-in reported in Oran

ORAN — A break-in was reported today to Oran police by Robey LeGrand, manager of the Mid-Florida Mining Co. office.

The office was broken into between 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today. Entry was apparently gained by prying open a window.

One item reported taken was a new calculator valued at $249, which had just been purchased four days prior to the break-in.

Oran police are continuing their investigation.

Fast Silk

"The Silks" were Canadian Pacific's famous transcontinental trains (1899-1930) which broke all speed records while carrying bales of precious silk to clothing manufacturers in the East. Brought to Vancouver on liners from Shanghai, the bales were swiftly sorted and sealed into specially built cars. Carefully selected crews and armed guards protected cargoes worth as much as $6 million.

QUOTABLE "It is designed that the country shall be furnished once a month (or, if any glut of occurrances happen, oftener) with an account of such considerable things as have arrived unto our notice." — Benjamin Harris, editor, in the salutary message of America's earliest newspaper, Public Occurrences. The date was 1690. Considerable things seem to keep on happening; newspapers continue to report them best.

Shorten schooling year or more , says former commissioner

WASHINGTON (AP) — American schools provide more formal education than a student needs, and high school or college should be shortened by a year or more, says a former U.S. commissioner of education.

Harold Howe II, who held the top education post from 1965 to 1968, also said Tuesday that adults should be allowed a year or more of education later in life.

Speaking at a four-day conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center, Howe, now a vice president of the Ford Foundation, said that 16 years of U.S. education — starting at age 6 and ending at 21 — is a luxury no other country has.

"People get fed up with classrooms after being in them for 16 years," he said, adding that it would be preferable for adults to be allowed a year of formal education at government expense when they are more mature and in a better position to appreciate it.

Howe also said he suspects television is responsible for the decline in national test scores among students.

"No one knows why the scores are going down," he said. "But we're now seeing a generation that has been watching television throughout its lifetime."

He added that many children watch TV four to six hours a day while children from lower-income families watch even more.

Howe predicted that when schools are asked where the fault of lower test scores lie, they will respond with a "back-to-basics" movement and by becoming more strict.

"They'll regiment kids and force learning down their throats," he said. "And kids will do what they've always done — throw it up."

In other comments, Howe said he thinks the women's movement will have a growing impact on the nation's schools.

"Some think it's a fad and will disappear," he said. "I disagree. I think it's a major movement in American society. It's a large scale enterprise that will affect textbooks, guidance and staffing in the schools, particularly at upper levels — principals and superintendents. The models kids usually see now are men."

Jupiter's 14th moon discovery claimed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not like the discovery of America; it's more like the discovery of Catalina Island," says astronomer Charles Kowal, who claims he has found a 14th moon of the planet Jupiter.

The new moon is just a speck, about four miles across and 400 million miles from earth, but it's only the 34th known moon in our solar system and the second such discovery since 1951.

Kowal, 34, an astronomer for the Hale Observatory near San Diego, also found Jupiter's 13th moon, and his latest discovery was reported Tuesday in a telephone interview.

How was a moon able to escape detection for so long?

"There are a lot of unknown things in the universe," Kowal said. "You just can't look at all of them. And partly it's a matter of fashion. Exotic things like quasars and black holes are fashionable right now and satellites are not."

Kowal made the discovery with a 200-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar Obsevatory, about 120 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

BALAP board

Public elections scheduled for low-income members

CARUTHERSVILLE — Public elections for low-income members of the board of directors of the Bootheel Area Legal Assistance Program (BALAP) will be held in New Madrid and Parma at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

The polling places will be the New Madrid Housing Authority, 550 Line St., New Madrid, and the Parma Community Building.

All residents of New Madrid County who are eligible for legal aid services from BALAP are urged to attend and vote.

Three New Madrid County residents will be elected to the BALAP board, as will three each from Dunklin and Pemiscot counties. In addition, the nine publicly elected board members will choose six more board members who will be attorneys or employes of agencies working with the poor.

Elections in Pemiscot County will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 14 at the Area Opportunity Center in Caruthersville and at the elementary school at Third and Washington in Hayti. In Dunklin County, the elections will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 in the Bank of Kennett meeting room and at the Malden Community Building.

Eligible voters may vote at either of the two polling places in the county they live in, and they will vote only for representatives of their home county.

For additional information, call the BALAP office, telephone number 333-4076.

Bernie survey for cable TV interest planned

BERNIE — The city will conduct a survey, probably starting next week, to determine how many residents are interested in cable television, City Clerk Maxine Foster said today.

Cotton Hill Cablevision Inc. of Malden presented the City Council a fact sheet Monday night, but the council took no action.

Mrs. Foster said the council will wait until results of the survey have been received before making any decision.

No other company has expressed an interest in supplying service to the city, Mrs. Foster said.

The council Monday night hired Lloyd Stafford as a temporary employe if he qualifies under the public service employe program in which the state government reimburses the city for hiring the worker.

Also hired was Edward Robertson, as a probationary police officer.

It was announced that City Collector Ruth Nichols has made out the tax bills and will mail them out next week.

The taxes become due Nov. 1 and become delinquent Jan. 1.

The council is also looking into other possibility of getting an emergency medical technician course for Bernie and purchasing a fire-proof vault for the city hall.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Dear Charlie,

I'd like to use your paper as a way to thank the good people of Sikeston for their support of the Class of 76's Chili Supper which was held on Oct. 3rd. The turnout was beyond our expectations. The cooperation we got from the school officials, mainly, Bob Buchannon and Mrs. Lawrence, was wonderful, we can't thank them enough. The ladies who served on the Committee all did more than their share of work. Then, there were the parents of the Seniors who contributed toward the supplies, and the fourteen mothers who chopped and donated onions and helped make the profit greater.

After seeing how those Seniors got out and sold tickets and then came to work, and the efficient way they conducted the Supper, made us realize that the future of this Country is in good hands. Again, thank you all, who supported this effort, and you too Charlie, for helping me to get the message to them.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. E.B. Hutchison

Scott City Council told

Garbage contract legal

SCOTT CITY — A contract awarded Jack Holder a year ago for garbage hauling in the city is legal, City Attorney Tom Arnold told City Council members Monday night, and councilmen and Holder will meet Oct. 20 to iron out details for a starting date on the mandatory collection service.

When the contract was let, Arlie Jackson, another trash hauler, challenged the contract with Holder on the grounds that contractors cannot do their own collecting. Garbage collections in the city have previously been on a private basis with Holder or Jackson, but will soon become compulsory.

Louis Leible asked the council to repair Second Street, telling members it was in worse shape than any street in the city. The council agreed and directed the city clerk to send a letter to a resident along the street who has left garbage standing and an old car in the street, to comply with city ordinances or face a fine.

Robert Harrison, city engineer, discussed work he has done for the city, pointing out he has prepared a master storm drainage plan as requested by the city at a cost of $4,000. The completed plan will now serve as a guide for any drainage work done, and Harrison will make periodic inspections in each stage of work at no additiona cost to the city.

Upon recommendation of Mayor James Cauble, the council agreed to reconstruct the city dog pound by purchasing fencing to make six separate dog runs in the pound, and to purchase six gates. The pound has been the site of numerous break-ins, and dogs have been released from its confines about a dozen times in recent monthss.

In othr business, the council:

—Voted to have the Municipal League codify city ordinances at a cost of $2,400.

—Will apply with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for grants for low or interest free loans to provide low income housing in the city.

—Will ask for bids to pave Wheeler and Susan Streets in Cloverdale Subdivision.

—Will ask for bids to start plan one of the master drainage ditch plan for surface water.

In a move masterminded by Henry Clay, Congress attempted to forestall the first crisis over extension of slavery by admitting Maine as a free state in 1820 and Missouri as a slaveholding state in 1821. Slavery was barred in the rest of the Louisiana Purchase.

Frank Cooper found guilty of second degree murder

KENNETT — A Dunklin County Circuit Court jury deliberated an hour and 14 minutes late Friday night before returning a guilty verdict in the murder trial of 25-year-old Frank Cooper.

The jury found the defendant — presently serving a six-year prison term for armed robbery — guilty of second- degree murder in the slaying of his companion, George Williams of Raytown. Williams' body was found on a ditchbank east of Kennett in late January. He had been shot once in the back of the head with both hands tied behind his back.

Judge Flake McHaney, who presided at the trial, set Oct. 22 as the date for sentencing. Since Cooper was tried under the second offender statute, the judge, and not the jury, sets sentencing.

The verdict was returned at 11:22 p.m., almost 14 hours after the jury panel appeared at the courthouse at 9 a.m.for the jury selection.

Shortly before 11 a.m., the all-male jury was selected, then excused until 1:15 p.m. to allow the defense to take up a motion to supress the evidence at a hearing held out of the jurors' presence.

Cooper sought unsuccessfully in the pretrial hearing to have the court supress a confession he had made to the murder to Jackson County authorities. However, the court held that from testimony heard at the hearing, there was no "coersion, threats or other evidence" showing the confession made was anything but voluntary on the part of the defendant.

Cooper and his wife, Jesondra, testified at the pre-trial hearing, in addition to officers from the Jackson County Sheriff's Department and the Lee's Summit Police Department who arrested Cooper on suspicion of robbing a Kansas City physician. During questioning, Cooper volunteered that he had killed his companion in Kennett five days earlier. Cooper's statement to the Jackson County authorities led Dunklin County officials to the site which he had described, where the body of Williams was found.

Cooper's court appointed attorneys were allowed 20 days by the judge to file a motion for a new trial.

The prosecution team of Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker and his assistant, Max Hilfiker, represented the state at the trial and pretrial hearing.

After the guilty verdict was read aloud, Judge McHaney ordered a presentence report on Cooper. However, at the defendant's request, the presentence was waived.

Cooper took the stand in his own defense late Friday afternoon, shortly after the state rested its case at 5:30 p.m., claiming that the confession he made to Jackson County authorities was not complete.

Cooper claimed there was a third person at the ditchbank with him and Williams the night he shot and killed his friend, but he said the third party was a local man, married with children, a homosexual who "loved" him. Cooper refused to identify the man he claimed could collaborate his account, maintaining that to identify his friend would be "incriminating" to both himself and his unidentified friend.

Cooper said he and Williams had come to Kennett about midnight on Jan. 25, staying overnight at the Westgate Motel. The following day, he said he and Williams contacted his friend, whom they went to meet about 7 p.m. at the Log Cabin Drive-In. Cooper said his "friend" left his car across the street at a supermarket parking lot and the three men drove to the ditchbank, just off Ely Road, where they "smoked grass and drank beer," shooting at beer cans they threw into the ditch that night.

Cooper said his "friend" and Williams became engaged in a quarrel when the man sided with him against Williams. As a result, Cooper claimed that Williams pulled a long knife from his rear pocket, leaving a 45 caliber pistol in the other pocket, and cut his other companion on the arm.

"I shot George when I thought he was going to kill — seriously hurt — this other person," Cooper told the jury Cooper claimed he then took Williams' shirt off, tying his hands behind his back. He and the other man then pushed Williams' body down the ditchbank and drove off, disposing of George's knife and his gun later. After leaving his friend at his car, Cooper said he went to Walnut Ridge, Ark., where he checked into a motel, stayed about 20 minutes, and then left for Conway, Ark., before going on to two motels in Oklahoma and subsequently to the Kansas City area, where he was arrested the following evening for the robbery of a physician.

181 applications made for projects funded by Missouri DNR

JEFFERSON CITY — A record 181 applications have been received by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for projects to be funded through the land and water conservation fund for fiscal 1976, DNR Director James L. Wilson has reported.

The project requests total $7 million, far short of the state's expected allotment of $3.5 million, Wilson said. The $7 million figure also does not include requests by state departments which usually average from $750,000 to $1 million.

The department received 125 applications last year for projects totaling $7 million in competition for the state departments which usually average from $750,000 to $1 million.

The department received 125 applications last year for projects totaling $7 million in competition for the state's allotment of $3.6 million.

Wilson linked the additional requests to a growing awareness by cities and counties of the importance of providing park and recreation facilities for their citizens. Rural counties are more aware of the program, while in the past, mostly metropolitan counties such as Jackson and St. Louis applied for the funds.

The land and water conservation fund program is a source of federal aid to state and local governments on a 50-50 matching basis to plan, acquire and develop outdoor recreation facilities. The $300 million national fund is apportioned by the Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR).

The Missouri program is administered through the state Inter-Agency Council for Outdoor Recreation, a council composed of nine of 13 state department heads. Wilson was appointed by the governor to serve as chairman of the council and his staff in the Department of Natural Resources manages the program.

Wayne Gross, local park grants program director in DNR's Division of Planning and Policy Development, said the BOR funds can be made available for four types of projects: to buy park land; to develop park land already owned; to develop donated park land, using the value of the donation as the local share of matching funds; and to acquire additional park land through donations.

Of the 181 new applications, 131 are for development of park land already owned, 17 are for buying land outright, 18 are for development projects on donated land and the remainder are for donation acquisitions.

The applications represent 100 political subdivisions, including five counties, five school districts and the remainder from cities. Several cities have requested funds for more than one project. Columbia's nine applications was the most of any city, Gross said.

Tennis courts are the most popular facilities, followed by swimming pools, ball fields, picnic areas and playgrounds. The largest project request was Cape Girardeau's application for $334,000 to build a 50-meter swimming pool. Jefferson City is asking for money to resurface roads at Binder Lake Park and acquire additional property there.

The DNR staff has begun reviewing applications prior to SIACOR's meeting in mid-October when the bulk of the funds will be allocated. A small portion will be reserved for late requests received between Aug. 1 and Dec. 31 for allocation next January, Gross said. The primary deadline for applications was Aug. 1.

Gross said since the fund was begun in 1965, Missouri has received $28 million. State projects have received about 25 per cent ofthe allocation or $7 million, while political subdivisions, cities and counties have received 75 per cent of $21 million.

Scott City Council told

Garbage contract legal

SCOTT CITY — A contract awarded Jack Holder a year ago for garbage hauling in the city is legal, City Attorney Tom Arnold told City Council members Monday night, and councilmen and Holder will meet Oct. 20 to iron out details for a starting date on the mandatory collection service.

When the contract was let, Arlie Jackson, another trash hauler, challenged the contract with Holder on the grounds that contractors cannot do their own collecting. Garbage collections in the city have previously been on a private basis with Holder or Jackson, but will soon become compulsory.

Louis Leible asked the council to repair Second Street, telling members it was in worse shape than any street in the city. The council agreed and directed the city clerk to send a letter to a resident along the street who has left garbage standing and an old car in the street, to comply with city ordinances or face a fine.

Robert Harrison, city engineer, discussed work he has done for the city, pointing out he has prepared a master storm drainage plan as requested by the city at a cost of $4,000. The completed plan will now serve as a guide for any drainage work done, and Harrison will make periodic inspections in each stage of work at no additiona cost to the city.

Upon recommendation of Mayor James Cauble, the council agreed to reconstruct the city dog pound by purchasing fencing to make six separate dog runs in the pound, and to purchase six gates. The pound has been the site of numerous break-ins, and dogs have been released from its confines about a dozen times in recent monthss.

In othr business, the council:

—Voted to have the Municipal League codify city ordinances at a cost of $2,400.

—Will apply with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for grants for low or interest free loans to provide low income housing in the city.

—Will ask for bids to pave Wheeler and Susan Streets in Cloverdale Subdivision.

—Will ask for bids to start plan one of the master drainage ditch plan for surface water.

In a move masterminded by Henry Clay, Congress attempted to forestall the first crisis over extension of slavery by admitting Maine as a free state in 1820 and Missouri as a slaveholding state in 1821. Slavery was barred in the rest of the Louisiana Purchase.

Frank Cooper found guilty of second degree murder

KENNETT — A Dunklin County Circuit Court jury deliberated an hour and 14 minutes late Friday night before returning a guilty verdict in the murder trial of 25-year-old Frank Cooper.

The jury found the defendant — presently serving a six-year prison term for armed robbery — guilty of second- degree murder in the slaying of his companion, George Williams of Raytown. Williams' body was found on a ditchbank east of Kennett in late January. He had been shot once in the back of the head with both hands tied behind his back.

Judge Flake McHaney, who presided at the trial, set Oct. 22 as the date for sentencing. Since Cooper was tried under the second offender statute, the judge, and not the jury, sets sentencing.

The verdict was returned at 11:22 p.m., almost 14 hours after the jury panel appeared at the courthouse at 9 a.m.for the jury selection.

Shortly before 11 a.m., the all-male jury was selected, then excused until 1:15 p.m. to allow the defense to take up a motion to supress the evidence at a hearing held out of the jurors' presence.

Cooper sought unsuccessfully in the pretrial hearing to have the court supress a confession he had made to the murder to Jackson County authorities. However, the court held that from testimony heard at the hearing, there was no "coersion, threats or other evidence" showing the confession made was anything but voluntary on the part of the defendant.

Cooper and his wife, Jesondra, testified at the pre-trial hearing, in addition to officers from the Jackson County Sheriff's Department and the Lee's Summit Police Department who arrested Cooper on suspicion of robbing a Kansas City physician. During questioning, Cooper volunteered that he had killed his companion in Kennett five days earlier. Cooper's statement to the Jackson County authorities led Dunklin County officials to the site which he had described, where the body of Williams was found.

Cooper's court appointed attorneys were allowed 20 days by the judge to file a motion for a new trial.

The prosecution team of Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker and his assistant, Max Hilfiker, represented the state at the trial and pretrial hearing.

After the guilty verdict was read aloud, Judge McHaney ordered a presentence report on Cooper. However, at the defendant's request, the presentence was waived.

Cooper took the stand in his own defense late Friday afternoon, shortly after the state rested its case at 5:30 p.m., claiming that the confession he made to Jackson County authorities was not complete.

Cooper claimed there was a third person at the ditchbank with him and Williams the night he shot and killed his friend, but he said the third party was a local man, married with children, a homosexual who "loved" him. Cooper refused to identify the man he claimed could cellaborate his account, maintaining that to identify his friend would be "incriminating" to both himself and his unidentified friend.

Cooper said he and Williams had come to Kennett about midnight on Jan. 25, staying overnight at the Westgate Motel. The following day, he said he and Williams contacted his friend, whom they went to meet about 7 p.m. at the Log Cabin Drive-In. Cooper said his "friend" left his car across the street at a supermarket parking lot and the three men drove to the ditchbank, just off Ely Road, where they "smoked grass and drank beer," shooting at beer cans they threw into the ditch that night.

Cooper said his "friend" and Williams became engaged in a quarrel when the man sided with him against Williams. As a result, Cooper claimed that Williams pulled a long knife from his rear pocket, leaving a 45 caliber pistol in the other pocket, and cut his other companion on the arm.

"I shot George when I thought he was going to kill — seriously hurt — this other person," Cooper told the jury Cooper claimed he then took Williams' shirt off, tying his hands behind his back. He and the other man then pushed Williams' body down the ditchbank and drove off, disposing of George's knife and his gun later. After leaving his friend at his car, Cooper said he went to Walnut Ridge, Ark., where he checked into a motel, stayed about 20 minutes, and then left for Conway, Ark., before going on to two motels in Oklahoma and subsequently to the Kansas City area, where he was arrested the following evening for the robbery of a physician.

Construction on building to house ambulance set

ADVANCE–Construction on a building to house an ambulance, supplied to the city by Stoddard County Ambulance District, will begin soon, City Clerk Lucy McCullough said today.

The decision to construct the building was made Tuesday night by the City Council. Estimated cost of construction will be $1,200.

The ambulance is presently kept at city hall in an area where a new firetruck will be housed when it arrives later this month.

The fire truck was purchased by the council in April and delivery is expected toward the last of this month.

The building will be constructed by city employes when they are not working on other city projects.

The council Tuesday night also agreed to do some repaving of some city streets with the street department to decide which streets will be worked on.

A building permit for a house in Tilley Addition was issued to Richmond Hardware and for a storage shed to Charles Bridges in Garner Addition.

Random E. Olds established the first automobile factory in Detroit in 1899.

Awards for most pledges

A bicycle will be given away this year to the participant in the third annual United Cerebral Palsy Walkathon who obtains the most pledges. Ellis Atchison, left, manager of Homestead Distributing Co., and Larry Menz, assistant manager, display the bicycle which was donated by Homestead. The walkathon is scheduled to begin with registration at 9 a.m. Saturday at Kingsway Plaza Mall. Anyone interested in walking or collecting pledges should contact Linda Strickland after 5 p.m. at telephone number 471-8478.

Rep. Howard annonces clean water hearings

JEFFERSON CITY — State J. T. "Jerry" Howard, D-Dexter, has announced that a series of public hearings will be held by the Clean Water Commission, which he urges all persons in the construction industry and related businesses to attend. Community leaders involved in water system construction and waste water treatment facilities should also attend, as well as communities trying to establish new systems, Howard said.

The dates and locations of the hearings include: Oct. 23, St. Joseph; Nov. 20, St. Louis; Dec. 11, Springfield; Jan. 22, 1976, Hannibal; and Feb 26, 1976, Cape Girardeau.

Howard said the following questions will be addressed at these hearings:

1. At the present rate of federal grant allocations, if we continue to provide the present 15 per cent matching state grant, Missouri's grant program for wastewater treatment projects will utilize the $150 million voter-approved state bond issue within three years. Should the state adopt another bond issue, reduce the precentage or discontinue state grants following the expiration of the availability of the original bond issue?

2. Large secondary treatment plants on the Missouri and Lower Mississippi rivers will require an expenditure in excess of $100 million per plant. Construction of these projects concurrently will use all of Missouri's share of federal dollars at present anticipated levels for a period of years.

3. Should the state: a. seek separate federal funding for these projects, b. concurrently fund all projects, or c. fund a project to completion before starting the next project?

An opportunity also will be provided for local input into other issues that may be warranted. The exact location and starting time of the hearing will be published at a later date, along with any questions of local interest which the commission will address.

Additional information regarding questions one and two above is available upon request to the following address: Department of Natural Resources, Water Quality Program, 1014 Madison St., Box 1368, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Security plan found before Ford's visit

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — A six-page security plan for President Ford's visit to Elkins last Saturday was found on the lawn of the Randolph County Courthouse three hours before the President's arrival.

The plan, found by this reporter prior to the security-conscious presidential visit, pinpointed places along Ford's route where he would probably alight from his bullet-proof car.

In fact, the President did stop at each of the three spots detailed on the plan.

The locations of four two-man West Virginia State Police sniper teams, assignments of all state and city police along the parade route, escape routes to be used by the presidential limousine in case of emergency and security plans for areas behind buildings along the parade route were also listed in the plan.

It included the assignments of state conservation officers and detailed the number of men involved in each assignment.

When an attempt was made to return the plan to a Secret Service agent assigned to the press credential room, the agent glanced at the material and said it was not important.

The reporter later showed the papers to Pappy Noel, a staff assistant to the President, and told him where they were found. Noel and other White House aides examined the plan and said they were alarmed at the apparent carelessness involved in its loss.

The aides kept the material turned over by the reporter.

Noel said the plan was distributed to state and local law enforcement officers during a briefing the morning of the President's arrival.

"We are aware of the reporting of the incident and we are investigating the matter," a Secret Service spokesman said in Washington early today. He declined further comment.

Walk scheduled Saturday

The third annnual United Cerebral Palsy Walkathon — a five-mile walk sponsored by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Scott-Mississippi-New Madrid Countiews, will begin following registration from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday at Kingsway Plaza Mall.

The walkers will begin their journey at 10 a.m., accompanied by police escorts. A rest break will be provided at the halfway point, and refreshments will be available. The walkers then will return to Kingsway Plaza Mall to complete the course.

A bicycle will be awarded to the walker who obtains the most money in pledges. Other prizes will also be awarded.

Registration forms and sponsor sheets may be picked up at Thrower's Shoe Store & Repair, 139 E. Front St. The forms may also be obtained by writing to United Cerebral Palsy, Box 307, Sikeston, Mo. 63801, or by calling the United Cerebral Palsy Center at telephone number 471-9455 or Linda Strickland at 471-8478 after 5 p.m. Parents' permission will be required for all persons under the age of 18 who wish to participate.

Ford has most vetoes overiden in a century

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, defeated in his battle with Congress over child nutritional programs, is having a higher percentage of his vetoes overridden than any chief executive since Andrew Johnson served in the White House more than a century ago.

Tuesday's decisive Senate and House votes to enact a $2.75-billion nutrition bill over the President's objections marked the seventh time in 14 months that Congress has overridden a Ford veto.

The House tally of 397 to 18 was 120 more than the needed two-thirds, and the 79 to 13 Senate vote was 17 more than necessary, with Republicans breaking ranks to contribute heavily to the tally.

Since becoming president, Ford has vetoed 39 bills. The seven successful overrides give the heavily Democratic Congress a score of 18 per cent. Woodrow Wilson, overridden on six of 44 vetoes, is next highest in the post-Johnson era with about 14 per cent.

Unless Ford and Congress can agree on spending cuts, Ford may get a chance to veto a lot more bills. Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., says Ford is adamant on cutting spending. He quoted Ford as promising that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it."

Johnson, a Republican, vetoed 29 bills during his presidency from 1865 to 1869. Congress overrode him 15 times, a score of more than 50 per cent and by far the worst presidential performance in the nation's history.

Since then, virtually all presidential vetoes have stuck. One reason is that in most cases, Congress and the White House have been controlled by the same party.

By comparison, Congress overrode 12 of President Harry S Truman's 250 vetoes, or about 5 per cent. Truman was a Democrat.

Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt, who served a record 12 years in the presidency, vetoed a record total of bills — 635. Congress overrode him only nine times, or about 1 per cent of the time.

Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed 181 bills in eight years, and Congress only overrode him twice, also about 1 per cent.

Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson vetoed 21 and 30 measures respectively between 1961 and 1969 without ever losing.

Richard M. Nixon, battling Demo m..$c congresses, vetoed 43 bills in 5½ years and lost five times or about 12 per cent of his vetoes.

Tuesday's action marked the third time in recent weeks Congress has enacted a bill expanding social program into law over Ford's veto.

The other two were bills covering a variety of federal health programs and the appropriations measure for the government's education programs.

what priorities would be set — to blindly strike out with no information on the budget ... and put a tax cut in place by January?"

Ullman called such a proposal "totally preposterous," adding, "I must say I am rather shocked that the administration would propose such a thing."

Simon argued that Congress could pledge itself to meet the ceiling, leaving details to be worked out later. He stressed that Ford is ready to veto any tax reduction plan not accompanied by a spending ceiling.

Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said Ford had told GOP leaders that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it."

Ullman's criticism won the support of Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., who said imposing a spending ceiling before seeing the President's budget "is like tying infinity to zero — you get nothing."

Vanik listed the eight companies he said paid no 1974 income taxes and their 1974 adjusted net incomes as Ford Motor Co., $351.9 million; Lockheed Aircraft Corp., $29.8 million; Honeywell, $98.8 million; U.S. Industries, Inc., $17.9 million; American Airlines, $26.7 million; Eastern Airlines, $17.6 million; American Electric Power Co., $163.7 million; and Allstate Insurance Co. and susidiaries, $137.3 million.

Construction on building to house ambulance set

ADVANCE--Construction on a building to house an ambulance, supplied to the city by Stoddard County Ambulance District, will begin soon, City Clerk Lucy McCullough said today.

The decision to construct the building was made Tuesday night by the City Council. Estimated cost of construction will be $1,200.

The ambulance is presently kept at city hall in an area where a new firetruck will be housed when it arrives later this month.

The fire truck was purchased by the council in April and delivery is expected toward the last of this month.

The building will be constructed by city employes when they are not working on other city projects.

The council Tuesday night also agreed to do some repaving of some city streets with the street department to decide which streets will be worked on.

A building permit for a house in Tilley Addition was issued to Richmond Hardware and for a storage shed to Charles Bridges in Garner Addition.

Random E. Olds established the first automobile factory in Detroit in 1899.

Awards for most pledges

A bicycle will be given away this year to the participant in the third annual United Cerebral Palsy Walkathon who obtains the most pledges. Ellis Atchison, left, manager of Homestead Distributing Co., and Larry Menz, assistant manager, display the bicycle which was donated by Homestead. The walkathon is scheduled to begin with registration at 9 a.m. Saturday at Kingsway Plaza Mall. Anyone interested in walking or collecting pledges should contact Linda Strickland after 5 p.m. at telephone number 471-8478.

Rep. Howard annonces clean water hearings

JEFFERSON CITY — State J. T. "Jerry" Howard, D-Dexter, has announced that a series of public hearings will be held by the Clean Water Commission, which he urges all persons in the construction industry and related businesses to attend. Community leaders involved in water system construction and waste water treatment facilities should also attend, as well as communities trying to establish new systems, Howard said.

The dates and locations of the hearings include: Oct. 23, St. Joseph; Nov. 20, St. Louis; Dec. 11, Springfield; Jan. 22, 1976, Hannibal; and Feb 26, 1976, Cape Girardeau.

Howard said the following questions will be addressed at these hearings:

1. At the present rate of federal grant allocations, if we continue to provide the present 15 per cent matching state grant, Missouri's grant program for wastewater treatment projects will utilize the $150 million voter-approved state bond issue within three years. Should the state adopt another bond issue, reduce the precentage or discontinue state grants following the expiration of the availability of the original bond issue?

2. Large secondary treatment plants on the Missouri and Lower Mississippi rivers will require an expenditure in excess of $100 million per plant. Construction of these projects concurrently will use all of Missouri's share of federal dollars at present anticipated levels for a period of years.

3. Should the state: a. seek separate federal funding for these projects, b. concurrently fund all projects, or c. fund a project to completion before starting the next project?

An opportunity also will be provided for local input into other issues that may be warranted. The exact location and starting time of the hearing will be published at a later date, along with any questions of local interest which the commission will address.

Additional information regarding questions one and two above is available upon request to the following address: Department of Natural Resources, Water Quality Program, 1014 Madison St., Box 1368, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Security plan found before Ford's visit

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — A six-page security plan for President Ford's visit to Elkins last Saturday was found on the lawn of the Randolph County Courthouse three hours before the President's arrival.

The plan, found by this reporter prior to the security-conscious presidential visit, pinpointed places along Ford's route where he would probably alight from his bullet-proof car.

In fact, the President did stop at each of the three spots detailed on the plan.

The locations of four two-man West Virginia State Police sniper teams, assignments of all state and city police along the parade route, escape routes to be used by the presidential limousine in case of emergency and security plans for areas behind buildings along the parade route were also listed in the plan.

It included the assignments of state conservation officers and detailed the number of men involved in each assignment.

When an attempt was made to return the plan to a Secret Service agent assigned to the press credential room, the agent glanced at the material and said it was not important.

The reporter later showed the papers to Pappy Noel, a staff assistant to the President, and told him where they were found. Noel and other White House aides examined the plan and said they were alarmed at the apparent carelessness involved in its loss.

The aides kept the material turned over by the reporter.

Noel said the plan was distributed to state and local law enforcement officers during a briefing the morning of the President's arrival.

"We are aware of the reporting of the incident and we are investigating the matter," a Secret Service spokesman said in Washington early today. He declined further comment.

Walk scheduled Saturday

The third annnual United Cerebral Palsy Walkathon — a five-mile walk sponsored by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Scott-Mississippi-New Madrid Countiews, will begin following registration from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday at Kingsway Plaza Mall.

The walkers will begin their journey at 10 a.m., accompanied by police escorts. A rest break will be provided at the halfway point, and refreshments will be available. The walkers then will return to Kingsway Plaza Mall to complete the course.

A bicycle will be awarded to the walker who obtains the most money in pledges. Other prizes will also be awarded.

Poplar Bluff swiftly honored

St. Louis Southwest, Columbia Rock Bridge, St. Louis Country Day and Lockwood all retained their first place stations in the Missouri State High School Football Poll released today. The three southeast Missouri representatives all retained their positions.

Poplar Bluff's Mike Moss was named player of the week and the Mules retained their fourth rating in class 4-A by beating Jackson 20-14, in a game that may have decided the Northern Division conference standings. Jackson, despite dropping that contest, stayed in the fourth slot of the 3-A ratings and Caruthersville remained in eighth by blanking Malden 38-0.

The top six were unchanged in class 4-A, as all ten teams in this week's ratings were winners. St. Louis Sumner was bumped from the elite and was replaced by William Chrisman, a team that was named in earlier polls.

St. Louis Duchesne dropped out of top ten in 3-A and was replaced this week by Savannah. Halfback Don Reppond of Joplin Memorial was player of the week after a five-touchdown performance in a 41-7 win over Lebanon. Reppond carried twenty times for 167 yards.

The first six were the same in 2-A also this week. Bethany fell and was replaced by South Shelby. Plattsburg runningback E.J. Harris was named player of the week because he carried 16 times for 196 yards and three scores in a 55-8 win.

The first seven stayed the same in 1-A, but number eight, Lathrop, was replaced in the ratings. Drexel also dropped out and new members were North Shelby and Sweet Springs. Matt Keetle of Kemper Military Academy was honored at player of the week for the second straight week. Keetle set a new school rushing record of 262 yards just last week. This week he ran 37 times for 275 yards and four touchdowns as Kemper won 42-12 over Kansas City West.

Reds sweep NL honors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds left here with the National League title, a yearning for their first World Series victory since 1940, and a mighty compliment from Al Oliver of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They'll go all the way. They definitely have the best team I've seen since I've been in major league baseball," said Oliver, whose eighth season ended Tuesday night when the Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings in the National League playoffs.

The Reds swept the series in three games even though Pirate rookie John Candelaria pitched superbly Tuesday night, matching a playoff record with 14 strikeouts.

"This is the happiest day of my life," said Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, whose club opens the World Series Saturday in Boston against the American League-winning Red Sox.

The Reds dealt Pittsburgh its final defeat about a half hour after the Red Sox swept Oakland in the AL playoff.

"I'm ready to play in Fenway Park," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who provided the key spark in the title-clincher.

It was Rose who belted a two-run homer that helped chase Candelaria in the eighth and gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead. Then after the Pirates pulled to a 3-3 tie with a run in their frantic ninth, Rose helped the Reds deliver their two-run knockout punch in the 10th.

For a while, it looked like the 21-year-old Candelaria would give the Pirates the reprieve they needed after two convincing losses in Cincinnati. He started with a flourish, striking out the first four batters he faced.

Dave Concepcion stroked a solo homer over the left field wall in the second, but that was the lone hit allowed by Candelaria over the first seven innings.

Al Oliver belted a two-run homer for the Pirates in the sixth to give Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead off Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan.

Candelaria's undoing began in the eighth — after he struck out Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo to raise his total to 14. That matched the previous playoff record set by Joe Coleman of Detroit against Oakland in 1972.

But Candelaria then walked pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund on four pitches, and Rose followed with his two-run homer that landed near the leftfield seats.

The Pirates loaded the bases in their ninth on singles by Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk and a walk to Bob Robertson.

Reliever Will McEnaney then yielded another walk to pinchhitter Duffy Dyer to force in the tying run, but Rennie Stennett flied out to center to end the inning.

The Reds put the game away with a 10th-inning push that began when Griffey beat out a two-strike bunt.

Sox end Oakland dominance

OAKLAND (AP) — Boston's Red Sox, inspired by the play of 36-year-old Carl Yastrzemski, fly the American League pennant today after destroying the Oakland dream of four straight titles.

"It's a very strange feeling," admitted the A's volatile owner Charles O. Finley. "But you can't win them all."

Boston, with a 5-3 victory Tuesday night, swept the bestof-five playoffs in three straight and now return home to open the World Series Saturday against the National League's Cincinnati Reds.

"We've won during the season on defense, and that defense won it for us in this series," declared Yastrzemski whose fielding gem in the eighth inning was the turning point of the final game.

Yaz made a diving stop of a drive by Reggie Jackson and held him to a single instead of a double or a triple. One run did score on the play but Sal Bando was stopped at third and the next batter, Joe Rudi, hit into an inning-ending double play.

Sharing the credit was relief pitcher Dick Drago, who threw a fast sinker that Rudi hit on the ground.

In the three games, Boston outhit the A's 31-19 and five of the Oakland starters, Campy Campaneris, Billy North, Billy Williams, Gene Tenace and Phil Garner, didn't get a hit all series.

"They just outplayed us," admitted losing Manager Alvin Dark who piloted the A's to the World Series crown in 1974 after Dick Williams left the helm after winning in 1972 and 1973.

Southpaw pitcher Ken Holtzman tried to go on two days rest after his own defense let him down in the first game that was lost by a 7-1 count.

"It just wasn't there," he said. "I was stiff."

Boston scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to break the scoreless duel between Holtzman and winning pitcher Rick Wise.

The Red Sox added three more in the fifth on hits by Rick Burleson, Denny Doyle, Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk plus a wild pitch. Cecil Cooper drove in the finale in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar walked as a pinch hitter in the sixth for Oakland and eventually scored on a ground out after Claudell Washington singled him to third. Two more runs scored in the eighth before Yaz and reliever Drago chopped off the rally.

For the series Yaz collected five hits, including a home run. During the season he had played primarily at first base, returning to his old familiar left field when Jim Rice was hurt.

No one was saying much about the coming series against Cincinnati, but Manager Darrell Johnson admitted he probably would start ace righthander Luis Tiant in Saturday's opening game at Fenway Park.

Also, shortstop Burleson said the fact that the opening two games of the just-concluded playoffs were at Fenway had been a big aid.

"I hope it will be the same in the World Series," Burleson said of the venerable stadium with its short left field wall.

"If we can hit some balls off the wall, I'm sure it will give George Foster some trouble," commented the Red Sox infielder. "When we won those first two games against the A's at home, we knew it would be just a matter of time before we won the series. But I was surprised we won it in three straight."

SHS fifth

The Poplar Bluff's Mules are listed this week by area experts as the number one football team in the SEMO district. The Mules have swept through five games undefeated, including a 20-14 squeaker over Jackson last week, and the Mules are ranked fourth in their class statewide.

Jackson, despite the loss, was rated second in the district. The Indians, now with a record of 4-1, are ranked fourth their class 3-A in the statewide rankings.

Caruthersville was a narrow choice over East Prairie for third. The Tigers own a win over big-school Sikeston and are ranked eighth in class 3-A. East Prairie, like Caruthersville, is undefeated and a definite contender for the Southern division crown.

Tied for fifth this week are the much-improved Sikeston Bulldogs andthe Illmo-Scott City Rams.

Poplar Bluff swiftly honored

St. Louis Southwest, Columbia Rock Bridge, St. Louis Country Day and Lockwood all retained their first place stations in the Missouri State High School Football Poll released today. The three southeast Missouri representatives all retained their positions.

Poplar Bluff's Mike Moss was named player of the week and the Mules retained their fourth rating in class 4-A by beating Jackson 20-14, in a game that may have decided the Northern Division conference standings. Jackson, despite dropping that contest, stayed in the fourth slot of the 3-A ratings and Caruthersville remained in eighth by blanking Malden 38-0.

The top six were unchanged in class 4-A, as all ten teams in this week's ratings were winners. St. Louis Sumner was bumped from the elite and was replaced by William Chrisman, a team that was named in earlier polls.

St. Louis Duchesne dropped out of top ten in 3-A and was replaced this week by Savannah. Halfback Don Reppond of Joplin Memorial was player of the week after a five-touchdown performance in a 41-7 win over Lebanon. Reppond carried twenty times for 167 yards.

The first six were the same in 2-A also this week Bethany fell and was replaced by South Shelby. Plattsburg runningback E.J. Harris was named player of the week because he carried 16 times for 196 yards and three scores in a 55-8 win.

The first seven stayed the same in 1-A, but number eight, Lathrop, was replaced in the ratings. Drexel also dropped out and new members were North Shelby and Sweet Springs. Matt Keetle of Kemper Military Academy was honored at player of the week for the second straight week. Keetle set a new school rushing record of 262 yards just last week. This week he ran 37 times for 275 yards and four touchdowns as Kemper won 42-12 over Kansas City West.

Reds sweep NL honors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds left here with the National League title, a yearning for their first World Series victory since 1940, and a mighty compliment from Al Oliver of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They'll go all the way. They definitely have the best team I've seen since I've been in major league baseball," said Oliver, whose eighth season ended Tuesday night when the Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings in the National League playoffs.

The Reds swept the series in three games even though Pirate rookie John Candelaria pitched superbly Tuesday night, matching a playoff record with 14 strikeouts.

"This is the happiest day of my life," said Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, whose club opens the World Series Saturday in Boston against the American League-winning Red Sox.

The Reds dealt Pittsburgh its final defeat about a half hour after the Red Sox swept Oakland in the AL playoff.

"I'm ready to play in Fenway Park," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who provided the key spark in the title-clincher.

It was Rose who belted a two-run homer that helped chase Candelaria in the eighth and gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead. Then after the Pirates pulled to a 3-3 tie with a run in their frantic ninth, Rose helped the Reds deliver their two-run knockout punch in the 10th.

For a while, it looked like the 21-year-old Candelaria would give the Pirates the reprieve they needed after two convincing losses in Cincinnati. He started with a flourish, striking out the first four batters he faced.

Dave Concepcion stroked a solo homer over the left field wall in the second, but that was the lone hit allowed by Candelaria over the first seven innings.

Al Oliver belted a two-run homer for the Pirates in the sixth to give Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead off Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan.

Candelaria's undoing began in the eighth — after he struck out Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo to raise his total to 14. That matched the previous playoff record set by Joe Coleman of Detroit against Oakland in 1972.

But Candelaria then walked pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund on four pitches, and Rose followed with his two-run homer that landed near the leftfield seats.

The Pirates loaded the bases in their ninth on singles by Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk and a walk to Bob Robertson.

Reliever Will McEnaney then yielded another walk to pinchhitter Duffy Dyer to force in the tying run, but Rennie Stennett flied out to center to end the inning.

The Reds put the game away with a 10th-inning push that began when Griffey beat out a two-strike bunt.

Sox end Oakland dominance

OAKLAND (AP) — Boston's Red Sox, inspired by the play of 36-year-old Carl Yastrzemski, fly the American League pennant today after destroying the Oakland dream of four straight titles.

"It's a very strange feeling," admitted the A's volatile owner Charles O. Finley. "But you can't win them all."

Boston, with a 5-3 victory Tuesday night, swept the bestof-five playoffs in three straight and now return home to open the World Series Saturday against the National League's Cincinnati Reds.

"We've won during the season on defense, and that defense won it for us in this series," declared Yastrzemski whose fielding gem in the eighth inning was the turning point of the final game.

Yaz made a diving stop of a drive by Reggie Jackson and held him to a single instead of a double or a triple. One run did score on the play but Sal Bando was stopped at third and the next batter, Joe Rudi, hit into an inning-ending double play.

Sharing the credit was relief pitcher Dick Drago, who threw a fast sinker that Rudi hit on the ground.

In the three games, Boston outhit the A's 31-19 and five of the Oakland starters, Campy Campaneris, Billy North, Billy Williams, Gene Tenace and Phil Garner, didn't get a hit all series.

"They just outplayed us," admitted losing Manager Alvin Dark who piloted the A's to the World Series crown in 1974 after Dick Williams left the helm after winning in 1972 and 1973.

Southpaw pitcher Ken Holtzman tried to go on two days rest after his own defense let him down in the first game that was lost by a 7-1 count.

"It just wasn't there," he said. "I was stiff."

Boston scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to break the scoreless duel between Holtzman and winning pitcher Rick Wise.

The Red Sox added three more in the fifth on hits by Rick Burleson, Denny Doyle, Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk plus a wild pitch. Cecil Cooper drove in the finale in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar walked as a pinch hitter in the sixth for Oakland and eventually scored on a ground out after Claudell Washington singled him to third. Two more runs scored in the eighth before Yaz and reliever Drago chopped off the rally.

For the series Yaz collected five hits, including a home run. During the season he had played primarily at first base, returning to his old familiar left field when Jim Rice was hurt.

No one was saying much about the coming series against Cincinnati, but Manager Darrell Johnson admitted he probably would start ace righthander Luis Tiant in Saturday's opening game at Fenway Park.

Also, shortstop Burleson said the fact that the opening two games of the just-concluded playoffs were at Fenway had been a big aid.

"I hope it will be the same in the World Series," Burleson said of the venerable stadium with its short left field wall.

"If we can hit some balls off the wall, I'm sure it will give George Foster some trouble," commented the Red Sox infielder. "When we won those first two games against the A's at home, we knew it would be just a matter of time before we won the series. But I was surprised we won it in three straight."

The Poplar Bluff's Mules are listed this week by area experts as the number one football team in the SEMO district. The Mules have swept through five games undefeated, including a 20-14 squeaker over Jackson last week, and the Mules are ranked fourth in their class statewide.

Jackson, despite the loss, was rated second in the district. The Indians, now with a record of 4-1, are ranked fourth their class 3-A in the statewide rankings.

Caruthersville was a narrow choice over East Prairie for third. The Tigers own a win over big-school Sikeston and are ranked eighth in class 3-A. East Prairie, like Caruthersville, is undefeated and a definite contender for the Southern division crown.

Tied for fifth this week are the much-improved Sikeston Bulldogs andthe Illmo-Scott City Rams.

THIS WEEK'S STANDINGS:

1.	Poplar Bluff Mules	5-0
2.	Jackson Indians	4-1
3.	Caruthersville Tigers	5-0
4.	East Prairie Eagles	5-0
5. (tie)	Sikeston Bulldogs	3-2
5. (tie)	Illmo-Scott City Rams	3-1

NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas+Oklahoma game is so important that Darrell Royal, your basic Country & Western fan, probably doesn't even have time to listen to any good guitar pickin' this week.

This corner certainly has nothing against guitar-pickin', even indulging in a few lost chords from time to time, as Darrell can testify, but this week we, too, will stick to pickin' scores.

And there's no better place to start than with the annual Red River brouhaha in Dallas between second-ranked Oklahoma and No. 5 Texas, highlight of a tasty schedule which also features three other match-ups between ranked teams — Michigan at Michigan State, West Virginia at Penn State and Oklahoma State at Missouri.

Royal won 12 of the first 14 battles against his alma mater but a revolting development has taken place the last four years with Oklahoma winning 48-27, 27-0, 52-13 and 16-13.

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer has never lost to Texas — or anyone else, for that matter — as a head coach, and he won't this week ... Oklahoma 28-21.

Last week's count showed 53 right and 15 wrong for a percentage of .779. For the season, it's 188-82-7—.696.

Michigan at Michigan State: It's the fifth year in a row the Spartans have played Notre Dame and Michigan back-toback. The first four times they lost to both. This year they beat Notre Dame, but they'll still lose to ... Michigan 17-10.

West Virginia at Penn State: The last 19 years, except for a 14-14 tie in 1958, have belonged to Penn State and only three times has the Nittany Lions' margin of victory been under 10 points. They say all good things must come to an end ... or must they? Penn State 24-14.

Oklahoma State at Missouri: Cowboys hit the road for the first time. The road hits back ... Missouri 24-17.

Ohio State at Iowa: "The players might tend to take this one lightly, but I won't let them," says Woody Hayes, whose Buckeyes are No. 1 ... Ohio State 42-7.

Washington State at Southern California: It's easy to get to the L.A. Colliseum but it ain't easy to win there ... Southern Cal 28-14.

Kansas at Nebraska: You think Kansas doesn't remember last year's 56-0 shellacking? You think Kansas won't get beat again? Nebraska 21-7.

Texas A&M at Texas Tech: Considered this for Upset Special ... very briefly. Texas A&M 27-10.

Washington at Alabama: Might be closer than you think. Then again, it might not ... Alabama 35-7.

Colorado at Miami, Fla.: Upset Special of the Week ... Miami 20-17.

Notre Dame at North Carolina: There isn't any good time to play the Irish, particularly after they lose a toughie Notre Dame 30-6.

Vanderbilt at Florida: The Gators haven't forgotten last year ... Florida 24-6.

Louisiana State at Tennessee: LSU won last year 20-10. This year ... Tennessee 20-10.

Conferences oppose playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the nation's major conferences have reaffirmed their opposition to a national college football playoff although such a proposal may come up for a vote for the first time at the National Collegiate Athletic Association's January convention.

The College Football Championship Feasibility Committee, headed by Temple University athletic director Ernest C. Casale, recommended a four-team, post-bowl playoff to the policy-making NCAA Council last weekend.

The Associated Press learned the vote was 8-4 — five members of the 17-man committee were absent — and three of the negative votes were cast by representatives of the Big Ten, Pacific-8 and Southeastern Conferences.

They were faculty representative Marcus L. Plant of Michigan, a member of the Big Ten; athletic director J.D. Morgan of UCLA, which belongs to the Pac-8, and Boyd McWhorter, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. The fourth negative vote came from Alan Chapman of Rice University, a member of the Southwest Conference.

The committee fight for a national championship playoff was led by Nebraska atletic director Bob Devaney, who was represented by sports information director Don Bryant, and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame. Other affirmative votes, the AP learned, were cast by Casale and representatives of Utah, Dartmouth, North Carolina, Toledo and Atlantic Coast Conference.

Absent committee members were Coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and John McKay of Southern California, athletic directors Elroy Hirsch of Wisconsin and Carl Maddox of Louisiana State and faculty representtive William H. Baughn of Colorado.

The playoff opposition from the Big Ten, Pac-8 and SEC stems from a desire to maintain the present bowl structure. The Big Ten and Pac-8 champions meet in the lucrative Rose Bowl while the SEC usually sends at least half of its 10 teams to postseason games.

"While the Big Ten has never adopted an official position, the conference has traditionally been opposed to a national championship playoff because of a long and successful affiliation with the Rose Bowl," said Commissioner Wayne Duke. "We feel a post-season playoff would be a detriment to the present bowl picture."

The championship committee recommended that four teams be chosen by a special panel, with two games to be played a week or so after the bowls and the championship game a week later.

An NCAA spokesman said he felt the proposal would become a formal piece of legislation at the January convention in St. Louis. If approved, it would take affect for the 1976 season.

CHICAGO (AP) — A controversy over the starting time of the Michigan at Michigan State football game this Saturday has been settled.

The game will start at 3:10 p.m., EDT, nationally televised by ABC. It originally was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. EDT.

The time was changed Tuesday after coaches of both college teams expressed concern that the game could finish in darkness at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing, where there are no lights.

The new time was agreed to by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke and ABC.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan will meet India in the second round of the Davis Cup Eastern Zone tourney here Dec. 5-7, the Japan Lawn Tennis Association said today.

India beat Thailand 5-0 in the first round in India while Japan drew an opening-round bye.

BENTON — In cooperation with Ford Groves of Cape Girardeau, the Benton Jaycees sponsored their city's first Punt, Pass and Kick competition Saturday.

Clayton Sauceda of Route 2 Sikeston was the winner in the 8-year-old division. Todd Cooper of rural Sikeston was second and Joel Holland of Morley took third.

Brock Milam of Benton won the first place trophy in the 9-year-old competition. The second place winner was Cathy Brant of Benton, while Melvin Young of Benton was third.

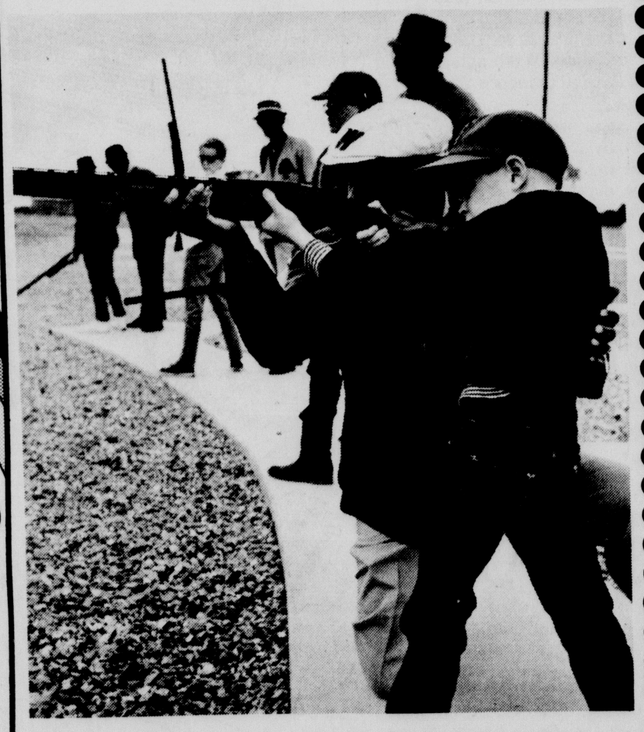
The winner among 10-year-olds was Jerry Wilkerson of Diehlstadt. Johnny McFall of Benton finished second and Ronnie Haynes of rural Charleston placed third.

Jamie Wilkerson of Diehlstadt won first place in the 11-year-old competition. Scott Lambert of rural Sikeston was second and Kenny Heuring of rural Chaffee third.

The 12-year-old winner was Roy Brant of Benton. Michael Essner of Benton placed second and Craig Cooper of rural Sikeston finished third.

Benton's Steven Young was the winner in the 13-year-old division. Randy Scherer and Cindy Brant, both of Benton, finished second and third.

The first place winners will compete in the zone finals this Saturday at Cape Girardeau Central High School.



Missouri hunters going to some other states may need proof of hunter safety certification to get a license — Kansas requires it of hunters under 18 years of age. Department of Conservation hunter safety personnel urge such training as a matter of good training, whether it's needed for license purchase or not.

Sports

ATLANTA (AP) — With tennis popularity booming and not enough courts available for the number of players, tennis clubs across the country have banded together to form the National Tennis Club.

Under the arrangement, any member of a member club can play at any affiliated club from Boston to Los Angeles and Miami to Montreal.

There are currently 40 tennis clubs affiliated with the National Tennis Club, and predictions are that more than 100 tennis facilities in most larger cities and popular resort areas will soon be included. Locations in Mexico and Europe are also being considered for membership.

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — An NCCA all-star golf team will meet a team of Japanese all-stars in an International Collegiate Golf Tournament in Japan, December 17-19.

The event, announced Tuesday, will mark the NCAA's first international sponsored competition, said Executive Director Walter Byers.

Rebels win

ESSEX — The Richland Rebels won an exciting final game 15-13 to give them a volleyball victory over Advance last Thursday evening.

Richland had won the first game of the match 15-4, but Advance bounced back to win the second game 15-11 after trailing 9-0.

Advance gained a split in the action by defeating the Richland B team 15-10 and 15-11. It was the first loss of the season for the Rebels' junior varsity.

BIG RED LETTERS

Dear Cardinal Fans:

This week I thought I would do something different. Instead of sharing segments of letters with you, I thought I'd reprint a complete letter from a "serious" Cardinal fan in Iowa. This man has some strong opinions about the Cardinals. I can't tell you what a pleasure it is to receive letters like this. It shows me people are paying attention.

Dear Sir:

I would like to know if the football Cardinals are ever going to honor Larry Wilson with a special day? I would like to see it happen on national television. Also I think Larry Stallings is the most underrated linebacker in the NFL. Why is this?

This man is All-Pro if there ever was one. I think the Cardinals can be Super Bowl champs this year. With a few breaks last year, you could have made it then.

There are several all-pros on the Cardinals and I would like to mention my picks. Here they are: Jim Bakken, Pete Barnes, yourself, Conrad Dobler, Mel Gray, Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Ernie McMillan, Bob Rowe, Jackie Smith and Roger Wehrli.

Here are some other people I think maybe should be on the list above or not far behind: Ken Reaves, Earl Thomas, Council Rudolph, Ron Yankowski, Bob Young, Tom Brahaney, Roger Finnie, Bob Bell, Mark Arneson, Norm Thompson, Leo Brooks and Tom Banks, when he is healthy.

Also I think when Larry Stallings hangs up his spikes they (the Cardinals) should have a day for him. It would really be nice for the Cardinals to win the Super Bowl with Larry participating in it. Here is a man that never gets any publicity what so ever, yet he has been a pro for 13 years (an All-Pro in my opinion). All he does is just goes out and does his job without any fan fare. He does his job in excellent fashion. This man should be given the recognition due him. How come he doesn't get it?

Well Dan, thanks for listening. In conclusion I would like to say I enjoy your Big Red Line very much. It really keeps me informed on the Cardinal happenings. Good luck on the coming season and keep up the good work on the Big Red Line.

Sincerely,
Bill Sullens Sr.
Clinton, Iowa

Dear Bill:

I have shown your letter to the Cardinal players and they thank you for your kind words. Larry Stallings was especially grateful. He is a fine linebacker and people who know football fully appreciate his abilities. Perhaps he will get a "day" some time in the future. That's up to Cardinal management. The Cardinal players believe that a Super Bowl is a good possibility this year. We're eagerly looking forward to overcoming all obstacles to get there. Thanks again for paying attention to us. It makes us a better team.

Dear Dan:

Why did the Cardinals release Ernie McMillan?

Grant Reaves, St. Louis

Dear Grant:

It was a hard day for every Cardinal when it became evident that Ernie was not going to play with us this year. He is a great human being, one of the finest I have ever met. And he has been an outstanding football player for St. Louis. The problem was that the Cardinals decided to go with young players like Greg Kindle and Henry Allison in back-up roles. So when Ernie lost his starting position to Roger Finnie, the decision was made to keep the youngsters and give Ernie his release. Football is not a sentimental sport and it will happen to us all some day.

Dear Dan:

I was at the game against Atlanta and during the whole game I thought the team was going to be 4-9-1 again. But I went home happy.

John Pram, Ladue

Dear John:

I went home happy too. Atlanta's defense is probably as good as any defense in the NFL. It was quite a surprise to everybody but it cannot be denied—Atlanta is not as bad a team as everybody has been saying. We had some problems defending against the run, but everybody felt that Charley Davis, our new defensive tackle, played extremely well when he came in. Bob Bell, who is in a contest with Council Rudolph for starting defensive end, also played well when he was in. Pete Barnes made an interception that could be the best interception I have ever seen in pro ball. All in all, the Cardinals showed why they are more likely to cause heart attacks than heart aches in 1975.

Dear Dan:

Aren't you worried about Jim Hart being intercepted four times in two games. This is the same pace as his 30 interception year. What is wrong with him? I know you guys on the offensive line gives him enough time. But that guy keeps making mistakes.

Dave Hammond, Los Angeles, California

Dear Dave:

You sure pay attention to the Big Red for a guy from Los Angeles. Jim has been intercepted four times but two of them came when his receiver let the ball go through his hands. They really can't be blamed on Jim. And as for mistakes—well, nobody's perfect but remember Jim passed for 300 plus yards in one half vs. Dallas. And his ability to deliver the ball on target and on time to the likes of Jackie Smith, Earl Thomas and Mel Gray is the essential ingredient in our two-minute offense, which has tied one game in the last seconds and won another. The sudden death interception was a mistake—but we made many as a team against Dallas and even though one may seem more dramatic than the others, in truth the Dallas game was indicative of Jim's new maturity. He is becoming another Johnny Unitas in his ability to move the ball for scores in pressure situations.

Dear Dan:

Do you think the Cardinals can beat the Redskins? Washington has scored 90 points in two games and only allowed their opponents 16 points. Doesn't this scare you.

Sally Allen, St. Louis

Dear Sally:

You don't have a relative in Washington by the name of George by any chance? Washington doesn't scare me although their point production and their defense breeds a certain amount of healthy respect. Actually they score a lot of their points because of their aggressive defense. Last year we defeated them twice and I believe they will be pointing towards us with special emphasis. You know, don't you, that George Allen has never lost to any other team twice in a regular season. If our offensive line can keep their rush out, as we did in Dallas, then our offense will score. The jury is still out on our defense. We'll have to see how they do against Billy Kilmer and company.

And even on the 7th day they don't rest.

Since January 1975, these people have been working 7 days a week, on 3 shifts, to make lids for home canning jars.

That's how hard we've been trying at Ball to meet the demand.

Ball has increased production of replacement lids by 30% over last year because of the effort these people have given.

Even so, some people haven't been able to buy enough lids.

If you have any extra lids, won't you please share them with your neighbor.

Richland High School will host the Stoddard County Girls Volleyball tournament beginning Monday, October 13, according to an announcement by Principal Carroll Odom.

The tournament will feature varsity and junior varsity teams from Advance, Bell City, Bloomfield, Bernie, Puxico, Dexter, Woodland and Richland.

Four games will be played nightly Monday through Wednesday, when the semifinal round is completed. The finals in both the A and B tournaments will be held Thursday night.

Trophies will be awarded to the first and second place teams in each tournament. Lonnie Hutchinson and Joe Pappas will officiate.

Admission will be 50 cents for students and $1.00 for adults.

Advance claimed the 1974 tournament in the A division, while Dexter won last year's B tournament.

BIG RED LETTERS

Dear Cardinal Fans:

This week I thought I would do something different. Instead of sharing segments of letters with you, I thought I'd reprint a complete letter from a "serious" Cardinal fan in Iowa. This man has some strong opinions about the Cardinals. I can't tell you what a pleasure it is to receive letters like this. It shows me people are paying attention.

Dear Sir:

I would like to know if the football Cardinals are ever going to honor Larry Wilson with a special day? I would like to see it happen on national television. Also I think Larry Stallings is the most underrated linebacker in the NFL. Why is this?

This man is All-Pro if there ever was one. I think the Cardinals can be Super Bowl champs this year. With a few breaks last year, you could have made it then.

There are several all-pros on the Cardinals and I would like to mention my picks. Here they are: Jim Bakken, Pete Barnes, yourself, Conrad Dobler, Mel Gray, Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Ernie McMillan, Bob Rowe, Jackie Smith and Roger Wehrli.

Here are some other people I think maybe should be on the list above or not far behind: Ken Reaves, Earl Thomas, Council Rudolph, Ron Yankowski, Bob Young, Tom Brahaney, Roger Finnie, Bob Bell, Mark Arneson, Norm Thompson, Leo Brooks and Tom Banks, when he is healthy.

Also I think when Larry Stallings hangs up his spikes they (the Cardinals) should have a day for him. It would really be nice for the Cardinals to win the Super Bowl with Larry participating in it. Here is a man that never gets any publicity what so ever, yet he has been a pro for 13 years (an All-Pro in my opinion). All he does is just goes out and does his job without any fan fare. He does his job in excellent fashion. This man should be given the recognition due him. How come he doesn't get it?

Well Dan, thanks for listening. In conclusion I would like to say I enjoy your Big Red Line very much. It really keeps me informed on the Cardinal happenings. Good luck on the coming season and keep up the good work on the Big Red Line.

Sincerely,
Bill Sullens Sr.
Clinton, Iowa

Dear Bill:

I have shown your letter to the Cardinal players and they thank you for your kind words. Larry Stallings was especially grateful. He is a fine linebacker and people who know football fully appreciate his abilities. Perhaps he will get a "day" some time in the future. That's up to Cardinal management. The Cardinal players believe that a Super Bowl is a good possibility this year. We're eagerly looking forward to overcoming all obstacles to get there. Thanks again for paying attention to us. It makes us a better team.

Dear Dan:

Why did the Cardinals release Ernie McMillan?

Grant Reaves, St. Louis

Dear Grant:

It was a hard day for every Cardinal when it became evident that Ernie was not going to play with us this year. He is a great human being, one of the finest I have ever met. And he has been an outstanding football player for St. Louis. The problem was that the Cardinals decided to go with young players like Greg Kindle and Henry Allison in back-up roles. So when Ernie lost his starting position to Roger Finnie, the decision was made to keep the youngsters and give Ernie his release. Football is not a sentimental sport and it will happen to us all some day.

Dear Dan:

I was at the game against Atlanta and during the whole game I thought the team was going to be 4-9-1 again. But I went home happy.

John Pram, Ladue

Dear John:

I went home happy too. Atlanta's defense is probably as good as any defense in the NFL. It was quite a surprise to everybody but it cannot be denied—Atlanta is not as bad a team as everybody has been saying. We had some problems defending against the run, but everybody felt that Charley Davis, our new defensive tackle, played extremely well when he came in. Bob Bell, who is in a contest with Council Rudolph for starting defensive end, also played well when he was in. Pete Barnes made an interception that could be the best interception I have ever seen in pro ball. All in all, the Cardinals showed why they are more likely to cause heart attacks than heart aches in 1975.

Dear Dan:

Aren't you worried about Jim Hart being intercepted four times in two games. This is the same pace as his 30 interception year. What is wrong with him? I know you guys on the offensive line gives him enough time. But that guy keeps making mistakes.

Fall enrollment reaches 1,541 at Three Rivers

POPLAR BLUFF — The total enrollment for the fall semester at Three Rivers Community College has reached a new high of 1,541, according to Ben Pulliam, director of admissions and registrar.

Registration statistics show increases in enrollment in all three divisions of the college — academic, occupational and continuing education.

Registration for this fall, compared with last year, shows an increase of 116 academic students, 49 occupational students and 121 continuing education students. The total increase from last year is 286.

Registration statistics for this year and last year, in order, include: academic, 682 and 566; occupational, 304 and 255; and continuing education, 555 and 494.

The registration statistics are based on preliminary figures and may change as some continuing education classes are still being organized.

Dr. H. Tudor Westover, president of the college, said, "The rapid growth in continuing education indicates there was an educational void in this area for adults. The program is filling that need."

Dr. Westover added, "Our large enrollment this year emphasizes our need for more and better facilities."

State librarian tours branches of Riverside

JACKSON — State Librarian Charles O'Halloran and Associate State Librarian Susanne Alexander were guests of the Riverside Regional Library Sept. 25 and toured Riverside's five branches in Prrry and Scott counties as well as the central center in Jackson.

O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander were accompanied on their tour by Earl H. Oldham, director of the regional library, and Harold F. Klaus, president of the board of trustees.

That morning they were greeted at the Perryville Center by Librarian Sally Modde and at Altenburg by Librarian Lucy Buck and Dr. Theodore Fischer, a Perry County member of the board of trustees.

In the afternoon the party met at the Illmo center with Librarian Alverta Leiner and Mrs. L. H. Shipman, a Scott County trustee. Librarian Bernice Kern met the group at the Benton center, and meeting with them at the Morley center were Librarian Beth King, Mayor J. R. Lee, former Mayor C. B. Taylor and Mrs. Louis Matthews, a member of the Morley senior citizens group.

O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander were evening guests of the Riverside Regional Library Board of Trustees at a dinner at the central center.

Attending the dinner, in addition to he board members named above, were Perry County Trustees John Bert and Oscar P. Kasten; Cape Girardeau County Trustees Charles Engelhart, Mrs. L. W. Kasten, Mrs. Leonard Ludwig, Roland Sander and Pervis Sebaugh; and Scott County Trustees Theon Schlosser, Jr., Mrs. Albert Dame, Mrs. Ray Marshall and Mrs. Robert Rosenquist.

Also attending were State Rep. Marvin Proffer, director Earl H. Oldham, and assistant director Leota Limbaugh.

Following dinner, the board of trustees convened for its monthly business meeting, with Klaus presiding. The county auditor's report was reviewed, and Oldham gave a progress report in the schedule of improvements being made to the library's buildings.

Following the business session, O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander spoke briefly on their observations and impressions of the library's physical facilities, book collection, staff and services offered. Both state librarians gave favorable comments and suggestions for future cooperation among libraries and with the Missouri State Library.

7,209 enroll Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — A record enrollment for Arkansas State University is indicated by final registration figures, according to Dr. Greta Mack, ASU registrar. This fall's total is 7,209, compared to last year's figure of 6,687, which is a 7.8 per cent increase.

Beebe campus has 780 students for a 19 per cent increase over last year's total of 654. Totals for both campuses are 7,989, a nine per cent increase over last fall's figure of 7,341.

At the Jonesboro campus, 1,331 female freshmen registered along with 1,264 males for a total of 2,595, an increase of 387 over last year. The sophomore class numbers 1,284, including 714 males and 570 females, an increase of 36.

The senior class enrollment of 1,259, including 761 males and 498 females, increased 64; and the 836 graduate students, including 341 males and 495 females, represent an increase of 114 over last year.

Two areas showed a slight drop from last year's figures. The junior class of 565 males and 476 females totals 1,041, a drop of 25, and unclassified students, which totals 214 and includes 86 males and 128 females, dropped 94 from last year.

The undergraduate total of 6,373 is 406 more than last fall's total, and the total enrollment of 7,209 is 522 over last year.

Young Kennedy apparently cured of cancer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Harvard Medical School surgeon who amputated the right leg of 14-year-old Edward Kennedy Jr. in 1973 says the boy apparently is cured of cancer.

"Teddy Kennedy shows no residual signs of cancer," Dr. Norman Jaffe told an audience at the Medical Center of Western Massachusetts.

Jaffe said the type of bone cancer suffered by young Kennedy, son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is extremely rare.

State librarian tours branches of Riverside

JACKSON — State Librarian Charles O'Halloran and Associate State Librarian Susanne Alexander were guests of the Riverside Regional Library Sept. 25 and toured Riverside's five branches in Prrry and Scott counties as well as the central center in Jackson.

O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander were accompanied on their tour by Earl H. Oldham, director of the regional library, and Harold F. Klaus, president of the board of trustees.

That morning they were greeted at the Perryville Center by Librarian Sally Modde and at Altenburg by Librarian Lucy Buck and Dr. Theodore Fischer, a Perry County member of the board of trustees.

In the afternoon the party met at the Illmo center with Librarian Alverta Leiner and Mrs. L. H. Shipman, a Scott County trustee. Librarian Bernice Kern met the group at the Benton center, and meeting with them at the Morley center were Librarian Beth King, Mayor J. R. Lee, former Mayor C. B. Taylor and Mrs. Louis Matthews, a member of the Morley senior citizens group.

O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander were evening guests of the Riverside Regional Library Board of Trustees at a dinner at the central center.

Attending the dinner, in addition to he board membrs named above, were Perry County Trustees John Bert and Oscar P. Kasten; Cape Girardeau County Trustees Charles Engelhart, Mrs. L. W. Kasten, Mrs. Leonard Ludwig, Roland Sander and Pervis Sebaugh; and Scott County Trustees Theon Schlosser, Jr., Mrs. Albert Dame, Mrs. Ray Marshall and Mrs. Robert Rosenquist.

Also sttending were State Rep. Marvin Proffer, director Earl H. Oldham, and assistant director Leota Limbaugh.

Following dinner, the board of trustees convened for its monthly business meeting, with Klaus presiding. The county auditor's report was reviewed, and Oldham gave a progress report in the schedule of improvements being made to the library's buildings.

Following the business session, O'Halloran and Mrs. Alexander spoke briefly on their observations and impressions of the library's physical facilities, book collection, staff and services offered. Both state librarians gave favorable comments and suggestions for future cooperation among libraries and with the Missouri State Library.

7,209 enroll Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — A record enrollment for Arkansas State University is indicated by final registration figures, according to Dr. Greta Mack, ASU registrar. This fall's total is 7,209, compared to last year's figure of 6,687, which is a 7.8 per cent increase.

Beebe campus has 780 students for a 19 per cent increase over last year's total of 654. Totals for both campuses are 7,989, a nine per cent increase over last fall's figure of 7,341.

At the Jonesboro campus, 1,331 female freshmen registered along with 1,264 males for a total of 2,595, an increase of 367 over last year. The sophomore class numbers 1,284, including 714 males and 570 females, an increase of 36.

The senior class enrollment of 1,239, including 740 males and 499 females, increased 64, and the 836 graduate students, including 341 males and 495 females, represent an increase of 114 over last year.

Two areas showed a slight drop from last year's figures. The junior class of 565 males and 476 females totals 1,041, a drop of 25, and unclassified students, which totals 214 and includes 86 males and 128 females, dropped 34 from last year.

The undergraduate total of 6,373 is 408 more than last fall's total, and the total enrollment of 7,209 is 522 over last year.

Young Kennedy apparently cured of cancer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Harvard Medical School surgeon who amputated the right leg of 14-year-old Edward Kennedy Jr. in 1973 says the boy apparently is cured of cancer.

"Teddy Kennedy shows no residual signs of cancer," Dr. Norman Jaffe told an audience at the Medical Center of Western Massachusetts.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 8, the 281st day of 1975. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, the Spanish mission at San Francisco was founded.

On this date:

In 1871, the Great Chicago Fire was touched off in Mrs. O'Leary's barn.

In 1903, the United States and China signed a commercial treaty.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted for murder in the death of the infant son of Charles Lindbergh.

In 1918, World War I hero Sgt. Alvin York killed 20 German soldiers in the Argonne Forest in France.

In 1945, President Harry Truman announced that the secret of production of the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1970, the Soviet writer, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson underwent successful surgery for removal of his gall bladder.

Five years ago: Floods caused severe damage in northern Italy after a night of storms, and 16 persons were reported dead.

One year ago: The Franklin National Bank in New York was declared insolvent in the largest bank failure in American banking history.

Today's birthday: Black activist Jessie Jackson is 34 years old.

Thought for today: I was seldom able to see an opportunity until it had ceaased to be one — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1835-1910.

St. Louis man drowns in Mississippi River after falling from dredge

CAPE GIRARDEAU—A 26-year-old St. Louis man drowned early Sunday in the Mississippi River near Trail of Tears State Park after falling from the Ste. Genevieve, an Army Corps of Engineers dredge while attempting to help another man aboard who had fallen into the water.

Authorities identified the victim as L.A. Dorsey, a corps employe who was working aboard the Ste. Genevieve.

The accident occurred about 1 a.m. The body was recovered about two hours later during a dragging operation by corps personnel.

Cape Girardeau County Sheriff's Deputy John Shannon said Dorsey apparently fell from the dredge when he attempted to help Michael Griffin, a corps employe, who fell into the water while coming aboard the barge from the small boat.

According to Shannon, Ted Sampson and Griffin were coming aboard when Griffin slipped and fell into the water.

Sampson, who was driving the small boat, tossed Griffin a rope which the victim held on to. Shannon said Sampson was pulling Griffin to the barge and when Dorsey came to assit, he fell into the water.

The officer said Sampson threw Dorsey a life buoy which landed about three feet from him, but instead of trying to grab the buoy, he tried to swim back to the barge. Shannon said Dorsey swam about six strokes before he disappeared beneath the surface of the water.

Meanwhile, Griffin was still in the water holding onto the rope. Sampson then towed Mr. Griffin to the nearby marina where he walked ashore.

The dredge had been working in the channel near the marina.

Dorsey's body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home at Jackson and was to be taken to Greenville, Miss., for burial.

Conferences will focus on measuring skills

JEFFERSON CITY—New ways of measuring the knowledge, skills, job preparedness and attitudes of Missouri's elementary, junior high and senior high school students will be the topic of 11 regional educational conferences to be held across the state during October and November.

About 5,000 Missourians are expected to participate in the one-day forums. Purpose of the meetings, sponsored by the State Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, is to bring state education officials, local school administrators and teachers, students, parents and community leaders together for a discussion of educational issues and programs.

The theme of the 1975 regional conferences is "Improving Instruction for Missouri Students Through Assessment and Testing." This theme is derived from two projects under way in Missouri designed to measure students and programs at several academic levels.

The Missouri Statewide Educational Assessment Project is a survey which will be conducted in the sixth and 12th grades. It is directed at four broad areas: intellectual development, physical development, social development and career development. The information obtained in this study will be vital for future decisions regarding educational policies and funding.

The Missouri Statewide Testing Program comprises a group of tests to be offered in the first, fourth, sixth, ninth and 12th grades. These tests have been designed and organized especially for Missouri students and educators; they produce data unencumbered by complex statistics and jargon.

With the test results, teachers and students will be better able to plan individualized courses of study, and school administrators will have an objective base for evaluating educational programs and practices.

"Studies have shown that schools sometimes do not communicate as adequately as they should with the communities and public served," Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory said. "The regional conferences, however, are designed to involve the general public and to help people gain an understanding of the goals and methods of the educational enterprise--a business that directly affects one-fourth of the state's population."

The locations and dates of the meetings are:

Mountain Grove High School, Oct 1; Keytesville High School, Oct. 8; Palmyra High School, Oct. 9; House Springs, North Jefferson Middle School, Oct. 13; Kansas City Technical Education Center, Oct. 16; Maryville, Washington Middle School, Oct. 17; Clinton High School, Oct. 20; Monett High School, Oct. 21; Eldon Tri-County Technical School, Nov. 3; Farmington High School, Nov. 12; and New Madrid R-I Vocational Complex, Nov. 13.

The conferences will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 3 p.m.

Nevada and Idaho push Bicentennial

Copley News Service

Nevada's congressmen have introduced legislation to designate the Nevada Bicentennial medallion as one of a commemorative series for the state.

Rep. James Santini, (D), author of the measure, wants to "provide that medallions struck on the reactivated Carson City Dollar Press by the Nevada American Revolution Bicentennial Commission shall be national commemorative medals."

Sens. Howard Cannon, (D), and Paul Laxalt, (R), cosponsored the bill in the Senate.

Designation as a commemorative series is possible because only Nevada struck a medallion in 1876.

The original die, used to make 2,524 Nevada Centennial medals on the five stamp mills set up in Philadelphia, will be used for one side of the new souvenir.

The 1976 Bicentennial logo, designed by Las Vegas artist Stephen W. Nesnick, will be on the other side.

Nevada's Bicentennial medallion will be produced on the famed Carson City Dollar Press in view of the public, at the site of the original Carson City Mint, now the State Museum. Part of the metal to be used is a joint donation of the Nevada Mining Association.

Four values will be issued. The $2 medal will be bronze alloy, the $5 of solid copper, along with silver and gold medals for $25 and $320, respectively.

The First National Bank of Carson City will receive and computerize orders and payments as its contribution to the Nevada Bicentennial project.

Reactivating the Carson City Dollar Press will be a lasting memorial of Nevada's Bicentennial observance. When the medallion project is completed, the Nevada American Revolution Bicentennial Commission will return the press to the State Museum, where it will continue to be a revenue source.

Nevadans will be able to buy medallions before they are advertised to out-of-state collectors.

One of Idaho's major Bicentennial projects will be the Intermountain Science Experience Center, devoted to the study and understanding of science and technology — past, present and future.

The center site is on 27 acres of land donated by the City of Idaho Falls, adjacent to the Rus Freeman Park on the banks of the Snake River at the highway intersection of Interstate 15 and the U.S. 20-191 turnoff to the Yellowstone Park.

St. Louis man drowns in Mississippi River after falling from dredge

CAPE GIRARDEAU—A 26-year-old St. Louis man drowned early Sunday in the Mississippi River near Trail of Tears State Park after falling from the Ste. Genevieve, an Army Corps of Engineers dredge while attempting to help another man aboard who had fallen into the water.

Authorities identified the victim as L.A. Dorsey, a corps employe who was working aboard the Ste. Genevieve.

The accident occurred about 1 a.m. The body was recovered about two hours later during a dragging operation by corps personnel.

Cape Girardeau County Sheriff's Deputy John Shannon said Dorsey apparently fell from the dredge when he attempted to help Michael Griffin, a corps employe, who fell into the water while coming aboard the barge from the small boat.

According to Shannon, Ted Sampson and Griffin were coming aboard when Griffin slipped and fell into the water.

Sampson, who was driving the small boat, tossed Griffin a rope which the victim held on to. Shannon said Sampson was pulling Griffin to the barge and when Dorsey came to assit, he fell into the water.

The officer said Sampson threw Dorsey a life buoy which landed about three feet from him, but instead of trying to grab the buoy, he tried to swim back to the barge. Shannon said Dorsey swam about six strokes before he disappeared beneath the surface of the water.

Meanwhile, Griffin was still in the water holding onto the rope. Sampson then towed Mr. Griffin to the nearby marina where he walked ashore.

The dredge had been working in the channel near the marina.

Dorsey's body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home at Jackson and was to be taken to Greenville, Miss., for burial.

Conferences will focus on measuring skills

JEFFERSON CITY—New ways of measuring the knowledge, skills, job preparedness and attitudes of Missouri's elementary, junior high and senior high school students will be the topic of 11 regional educational conferences to be held across the state during October and November.

About 5,000 Missourians are expected to participate in the one-day forums. Purpose of the meetings, sponsored by the State Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, is to bring state education officials, local school administrators and teachers, students, parents and community leaders together for a discussion of educational issues and programs.

The theme of the 1975 regional conferences is "Improving Instruction for Missouri Students Through Assessment and Testing." This theme is derived from two projects under way in Missouri designed to measure students and programs at several academic levels.

The Missouri Statewide Educational Assessment Project is a survey which will be conducted in the sixth and 12th grades. It is directed at four broad areas: intellectual development, physical development, social development and career development. The information obtained in this study will be vital for future decisions regarding educational policies and funding.

The Missouri Statewide Testing Program comprises a group of tests to be offered in the first, fourth, sixth, ninth and 12th grades. These tests have been designed and organized especially for Missouri students and educators; they produce data unencumbered by complex statistics and jargon.

With the test results, teachers and students will be better able to plan individualized courses of study, and school administrators will have an objective base for evaluating educational programs and practices.

"Studies have shown that schools sometimes do not communicate as adequately as they should with the communities and public served," Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory said. "The regional conferences, however, are designed to involve the general public and to help people gain an understanding of the goals and methods of the educational enterprise--a business that directly affects one-fourth of the state's population."

The locations and dates of the meetings are:

Mountain Grove High School, Oct 1; Keytesville High School, Oct. 8; Palmyra High School, Oct. 9; House Springs, North Jefferson Middle School, Oct. 13; Kansas City Technical Education Center, Oct. 16; Maryville, Washington Middle School, Oct. 17; Clinton High School, Oct. 20; Monett High School, Oct. 21; Eldon Tri-County Technical School, Nov. 3; Farmington High School, Nov. 12; and New Madrid R-I Vocational Complex, Nov. 13.

The conferences will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 3 p.m.

Nevada and Idaho push Bicentennial

Copley News Service

Nevada's congressmen have introduced legislation to designate the Nevada Bicentennial medallion as one of a commemorative series for the state.

Rep. James Santini, (D), author of the measure, wants to "provide that medallions struck on the reactivated Carson City Dollar Press by the Nevada American Revolution Bicentennial Commission shall be national commemorative medals."

Sens. Howard Cannon, (D), and Paul Laxalt, (R), cosponsored the bill in the Senate.

Designation as a commemorative series is possible because only Nevada struck a medallion in 1876.

The original die, used to make 2,524 Nevada Centennial medals on the five stamp mills set up in Philadelphia, will be used for one side of the new souvenir.

The 1976 Bicentennial logo, designed by Las Vegas artist Stephen W. Nesnick, will be on the other side.

Nevada's Bicentennial medallion will be produced on the famed Carson City Dollar Press in view of the public, at the site of the original Carson City Mint, now the State Museum. Part of the metal to be used is a joint donation of the Nevada Mining Association.

Four values will be issued. The $2 medal will be bronze alloy, the $5 of solid copper, along with silver and gold medals for $25 and $320, respectively.

The First National Bank of Carson City will receive and computerize orders and payments as its contribution to the Nevada Bicentennial project.

Reactivating the Carson City Dollar Press will be a lasting memorial of Nevada's Bicentennial observance. When the medallion project is completed, the Nevada American Revolution Bicentennial Commission will return the press to the State Museum, where it will continue to be a revenue source.

Nevadans will be able to buy medallions before they are advertised to out-of-state collectors.

One of Idaho's major Bicentennial projects will be the Intermountain Science Experience Center, devoted to the study and understanding of science and technology — past, present and future.

The center site is on 27 acres of land donated by the City of Idaho Falls, adjacent to the Rus Freeman Park on the banks of the Snake River at the highway intersection of Interstate 15 and the U.S. 20-191 turnoff to the Yellowstone Park.

Teen-aged obesity can cause cancer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Women who were obese as teenagers have a higher chance of developing cancer which affects the lining of the uterus, researchers at the Medical College of Wisconsin have found.

Those who were obese both as teen-agers and as adults have an even greater chance of developing such a cancer, they say.

However, researchers said they found no association between being overweight and development of other cancers, although obese persons are more prone to develop some other diseases than persons of normal weight.

One theory about the origin of the cancer suggests that it is associated with the long-term presence of hormones in tissues.

Obesity induces a consistent presence of low-level estrogens stored in fat cells and thus might stimulate the development of cancer in the genital area, if the theory is correct, according to Dr. Alfred A. Rimm, associate professor of preventive medicine.

Rimm and colleagues at the college studied 56,111 women who were members of TOPS Club, Inc., which has funded research at the college on obesity problems.

TOPS — for Take Off Pounds Sensibly — is a national non-profit organization of obese persons concerned about weight control.

Rimm reports in a study to be published in January in Preventive Medicine that women who were obese as teen-agers have a 62 per cent greater chance of developing endometrial cancer than those who had normal weight as teen-agers.

Women who were obese in adolescence and are obese now had a 75 per cent greater risk, he found in a statistical analysis.

These recipes I am about to give you today are all favorite recipes of mainliner chefs. So instead of spending your money on that plane ticket, go to the grocery store and spend it on the ingredients. And as you serve this meal pretend you're on your way to Hong Kong, Paris or Timbucktu.

ALASTIAN ONION PIE

1½ pounds onions, thinly sliced
1 tsp. butter
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 Tbsp. flour
3 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
pinch of nutmet
white pepper to taste
one 9-inch pie shell, uncooked

Smother together bacon, onions and butter. Do not cook onions completely. Cool. Mix eggs, flour and milk and beat lightly. Combine everything and season. Fill the pie shell and bake at 425 degrees until the shell is done, the custard set and the surface has a healthy golden hue. Makes 8 to 10 appetizer portions.

BAKED LOUISIANA SHRIMP

¼ pound butter
3 tsp. chopped parsley
2 cloves minced garlic
3 eggs
1 pound smoke bacon
3 cups cooked wild rice

Cook and shell shrimp. Make a thick batter of creamed butter, parsley, garlic and eggs. Coat shrimp with batter and wrap in a blanket of bacon. Saute slowly. Put bed of rice in casserole, cover with sauteed shrimp. Bake at 350 degrees for five minutes. Serves 8.

ZUCCHINI SQUASH SAUTE

5 medium zucchini
3 Tbsp. oil
1 clove garlic
4 chopped green onions
½ tsp. minced rosemary
2 Tbsp. grated cheese
salt and pepper

Wash zucchini and cut into thick slices without peeling. Fry onion, garlic and minced fresh rosemary in oil slowly. Add zucchini and salt and pepper to taste. Cook fast, stirring frequently to keep from burning. Sprinkle with grated cheese before serving. Services 8.

HEAVENLY DELIGHT SALAD

16 marshmallows
maraschino cherries
1 Tbsp. honey juice of half a lemon
1 pint whipping cream
1 Tbsp. mayonnaise

Peel and dice apples. Quarter marshmallows and cherries and add to the apples. Add sugar if needed or desired. Make dressing. Whip cream and fold in other ingredients. Toss with fruit, saving a small portion for garnishing top of salad.

STRAWBERRIES ROMANOFF

1 quart ripe strawberries
2 oranges
2 ounces Curacao liqueur
2 ounces brandy
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
12 cubes sugar
2 Tbsp. sugar

Wash strawberries and place in bowl. Squeeze jucie from oranges and soak 12 sugar cubes until dissolved. Add liqueur and brandy to orange juice with sugar. Mix well with strawberries and allow to stand in refrigerator, stirring occasionally to assure mixing. To serve, top strawberries with whipped cream and sprinkle with grated sweet chocolate.

At Wit's End
Youngster stifles super salesmen

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a week goes by but that some ingenious American doesn't come up with a way to ward off would-be robbers.

The owner of a lumberyard rented a vicious German shepherd dog to patrol his grounds for $300 a month. Then, a filling station manager, disgusted with being robbed too many times, rented python snake to cruise around at night and keep people honest.

The latest is a jewelry store in San Francisco that hired a tarantual called Henrietta to patrol a window of gems for $10 a month.

My friend Mayva probably has the most ingenious plan yet. She leaves her front door unlocked, her garden hose and bicycles in plain view, the keys in her car, and still goes to bed with a feeling of safety. Mayva has a sign in her window that reads, "THIS HOUSE IS PATROLLED REGULARLY BY A TWO-YEAR-OLD."

Not only does the sign discourage burglars, but Mayva hasn't had a door-to-door salesman in six months.

The last visitor to brave Baby Peggy was a man who sharpened knives. He knocked on the door and asked, "Is Mommy home?"

"Why?" asked Peggy.

"I want to see her."

"Why?"

"I have something to show her."

"Why?"

Forty-five "whys?" later, the poor devil was barely inside the door when the dog was wearing his hat, the contents of his bag were spread all over the floor and Peggy was flashing a movie on his teeth and giggling.

She then proceeded to drag out all of her Christmas toys, drop his car keys down the commode, sell him yesterday's paper for 5 cents and hand him a book upside down and demand he read her a story.

She changed her clothes three times, had a monster follow him around the room until his batteries ran down (the knife sharpener, not the monster) and insisted he sharpen a plastic letter opener.

He was ordered to guess how many pennies were in her bank (he was up to 438), sat on her muffin tin from her little oven and broke it, talked with Grandma whom she had just dialed direct in California while she sat on his lap and cooed, "I got measles."

Mayva has suggested many times that she is willing to rent Peggy out to guard other houses.

We agreed we'd take our chances with organized crime.

Women gain everything in Oklahoma divorce law

OKLAHOMA CITY — An Oklahoma divorce law that takes effect Wednesday gives a wife all of a couple's property, even hubby's socks and pipe.

"I sure as heck didn't mean to give all my cows to my wife" in the unlikely event of a divorce, said state Sen. John Young, a country lawyer who started the idea.

He said he just wanted a woman to have the right to regain her maiden name after a divorce. He said the intent was to make Oklahoma's divorce law in accord with the Equal Rights Amendment, "where everybody starts even in a divorce court."

Opponents claim it will result in chaos if the state supreme court doesn't declare it unconstitutional. Gov. David Boren was asked by a co-author of the law to call a special session of the legislature to repeal it. Boren said he would wait for a legal opinion.

Young's 250-word measure was passed without close scrutiny in the closing hours of the 1975 legislature. The giveaway to the women was on the front page.

"When a divorce shall be granted, the wife shall be restored to her maiden or former name if she so desires, and also to all the property, lands, tenements, hereditaments owned by either party before marriage or acquired by either party in their own right after such marriage, and not previously disposed of," the bill states.

Boren signed the bill June 12, but no one discovered what it really said until September.

"I think there is strong possibility of a constitutional defect which would keep the bill from taking effect," said Boren, a former professor of constitutional law at Oklahoma Baptist University.

The first legal test came in a suit filed by Johnita Sue Caywood of Norman, who is seeking all of the property of her husband, Robert Monroe Caywood Jr. A state judge declared the law unconstitutional in a pretrial hearing.

Until the court rules, the Caywoods' attorneys said, "Chaotic conditions will prevail in trial courts, leaving the disposition and division of property of litigants in divorce cases in a state of uncertainty."

"To say that a wife should, as a matter of absolute right, receive all the property is discriminatory," said two attorneys for Caywood in a brief filed with the state supreme court. They claim the bill is unconstitutional because its title does not mention the divorced wife would take everything.

Ann Landers
Landers warns mothers to watch husbands who prey on daughters

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother whose husband can't stay out of the bathroom when his teenage daughters are showering or bathing really got to me. I owe it to every teenage girl in the world to tell my story.

That mother said her 14-year-old didn't seem to mind because she never complained. Well, maybe she has been threatened into silence--like I was.

You should have told Mom to get her crazy, sick husband out of the house before one or both of her daughters got raped.

Being sexually attacked by a stranger is bad enough, but when it's your own father it creates horrible, twisted feelings that hang in your head night and day. No one can imagine what an effect such an act can have on a young girl.

I was 12 when it happened to me. Now at 19, even after all the counseling, I still get sick to my stomach when a decent boy wants to hold my hand. I keep wondering if I'll ever be able to have a normal sex life.

If I were in that mother's place I'd order the father out of the house immediately and insist that he get psychiatric treatment. He could come back if and when the doctor said he was well. No man will ever jeopardize the children I hope to have someday.--Been Through It

Dear B.T.I.: So have hundred of others, dear. I was chilled by the number of letters I received from young girls who wrote to say they had been sexually assaulted by their fathers.

Once again, I urge every girl who experiences such a trauma to tell her mother at once. If--and this may be hard to believe--your mother refuses to believe you, or will do nothing to protect you, call the police at once and let the law step in.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about people who can't seem to get anyplace on time. What about those who come early to dinner?

I love this couple dearly but they always louse me up by showing up at least 30 minutes ahead of time. Every hostess needs those 30 minutes to do her last-minute chores before guests arrive.

I'd appreciate any word of advice you can offer. This has been going on for at least three years and--I Have Had It With The Early Birds

Dear Had It: You write rather well so I assume you can also speak. The next time you invite the Early Birds for dinner tell Mrs. E.B. you'd appreciate it if they wouldn't arrive before the appointed hour because you need the extra time to get things ready.

If after that little speech, they STILL arrive early, let 'em lean on the bell awhile.

Dear Ann Landers: May I offer a few words to the elderly? Stop wasting precious time worrying about old age. It's part of life. Even children grow older every day. I have seen 68 summers but I refuse to remember the winters.

The secret of a happy life is to be useful. Get a part-time job. Develop a hobby. Do volunteer work in a hospital, nursing home or a place that helps delinquent or handicapped children.

Age represents knowledge and experience. The world needs you. Shut the door on uselessness and self-pity. When you help others you best serve yourself. Enjoy life. It's beautiful.--Betty

Dear Betty: your message has Wow-Power. Thanks for a piece of solid philosophy.

Getting married?

The Daily Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., now has new wedding forms available at the front office or at the women's desk. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided.

The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. Pictures will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope large enough to hold a picture is supplied. Color pictures are discouraged. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

At Wit's End
Youngster stifles super salesmen

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a week goes by but that some ingenious American doesn't come up with a way to ward off would-be robbers.

The owner of a lumberyard rented a vicious German shepherd dog to patrol his grounds for $300 a month. Then, a filling station manager, disgusted with being robbed too many times, rented python snake to cruise around at night and keep people honest.

The latest is a jewelry store in San Francisco that hired a tarantual called Henrietta to patrol a window of gems for $10 a month.

My friend Mayva probably has the most ingenious plan yet. She leaves her front door unlocked, her garden hose and bicycles in plain view, the keys in her car, and still goes to bed with a feeling of safety. Mayva has a sign in her window that reads, "THIS HOUSE IS PATROLLED REGULARLY BY A TWO-YEAR-OLD."

Not only does the sign discourage burglars, but Mayva hasn't had a door-to-door salesman in six months.

The last visitor to brave Baby Peggy was a man who sharpened knives. He knocked on the door and asked, "Is Mommy home?"

"Why?" asked Peggy.

"I want to see her."

"Why?"

"I have something to show her."

"Why?"

Forty-five "whys?" later, the poor devil was barely inside the door when the dog was wearing his hat, the contents of his bag were spread all over the floor and Peggy was flashing a movie on his teeth and giggling.

She then proceeded to drag out all of her Christmas toys, drop his car keys down the commode, sell him yesterday's paper for 5 cents and hand him a book upside down and demand he read her a story.

She changed her clothes three times, had a monster follow him around the room until his batteries ran down (the knife sharpener, not the monster) and insisted he sharpen a plastic letter opener.

He was ordered to guess how many pennies were in her bank (he was up to 438), sat on her muffin tin from her little oven and broke it, talked with Grandma whom she had just dialed direct in California while she sat on his lap and cooed, "I got measles."

Mayva has suggested many times that she is willing to rent Peggy out to guard other houses.

We agreed we'd take our chances with organized crime.

Women gain everything in Oklahoma divorce law

OKLAHOMA CITY — An Oklahoma divorce law that takes effect Wednesday gives a wife all of a couple's property, even hubby's socks and pipe.

"I sure as heck didn't mean to give all my cows to my wife" in the unlikely event of a divorce, said state Sen. John Young, a country lawyer who started the idea.

He said he just wanted a woman to have the right to regain her maiden name after a divorce. He said the intent was to make Oklahoma's divorce law in accord with the Equal Rights Amendment, "where everybody starts even in a divorce court."

Opponents claim it will result in chaos if the state supreme court doesn't declare it unconstitutional. Gov. David Boren was asked by a co-author of the law to call a special session of the legislature to repeal it. Boren said he would wait for a legal opinion.

Young's 250-word measure was passed without close scrutiny in the closing hours of the 1975 legislature. The giveaway to the women was on the front page.

"When a divorce shall be granted, the wife shall be restored to her maiden or former name if she so desires, and also to all the property, lands, tenements, hereditaments owned by either party before marriage or acquired by either party in their own right after such marriage, and not previously disposed of," the bill states.

Boren signed the bill June 12, but no one discovered what it really said until September.

"I think there is strong possibility of a constitutional defect which would keep the bill from taking effect," said Boren, a former professor of constitutional law at Oklahoma Baptist University.

The first legal test came in a suit filed by Johnita Sue Caywood of Norman, who is seeking all of the property of her husband, Robert Monroe Caywood Jr. A state judge declared the law unconstitutional in a pretrial hearing.

Until the court rules, the Caywoods' attorneys said, "Chaotic conditions will prevail in trial courts, leaving the disposition and division of property of litigants in divorce cases in a state of uncertainty."

"To say that a wife should, as a matter of absolute right, receive all the property is discriminatory," said two attorneys for Caywood in a brief filed with the state supreme court. They claim the bill is unconstitutional because its title does not mention the divorced wife would take everything.

In cooking vegetables for baby, it is particularly important to preserve all the natural vitamins and minerals. Scrub and rinse, but do not peel, vegetables. Cut vegetable into small pieces and cook in the barest amount of water in the shortest possible time until soft and water is absorbed. Strain through a food mill. Do not add salt or other seasonings.

Ann Landers
Landers warns mothers to watch husbands who prey on daughters

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother whose husband can't stay out of the bathroom when his teenage daughters are showering or bathing really got to me. I owe it to every teenage girl in the world to tell my story.

That mother said her 14-year-old didn't seem to mind because she never complained. Well, maybe she has been threatened into silence--like I was.

You should have told Mom to get her crazy, sick husband out of the house before one or both of her daughters got raped.

Being sexually attacked by a stranger is bad enough, but when it's your own father it creates horrible, twisted feelings that hang in your head night and day. No one can imagine what an effect such an act can have on a young girl.

I was 12 when it happened to me. Now at 19, even after all the counseling, I still get sick to my stomach when a decent boy wants to hold my hand. I keep wondering if I'll ever be able to have a normal sex life.

If I were in that mother's place I'd order the father out of the house immediately and insist that he get psychiatric treatment. He could come back if and when the doctor said he was well. No man will ever jeopardize the children I hope to have someday.--Been Through It

Dear B.T.I.: So have hundred of others, dear. I was chilled by the number of letters I received from young girls who wrote to say they had been sexually assaulted by their fathers.

Once again, I urge every girl who experiences such a trauma to tell her mother at once. If--and this may be hard to believe--your mother refuses to believe you, or will do nothing to protect you, call the police at once and let the law step in.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about people who can't seem to get anyplace on time. What about those who come early to dinner?

I love this couple dearly but they always louse me up by showing up at least 30 minutes ahead of time. Every hostess needs those 30 minutes to do her last-minute chores before guests arrive.

I'd appreciate any word of advice you can offer. This has been going on for at least three years and--I Have Had It With The Early Birds

Dear Had It: You write rather well so I assume you can also speak. The next time you invite the Early Birds for dinner tell Mrs. E.B. you'd appreciate it if they wouldn't arrive before the appointed hour because you need the extra time to get things ready.

If after that little speech, they STILL arrive early, let 'em lean on the bell awhile.

Dear Ann Landers: May I offer a few words to the elderly? Stop wasting precious time worrying about old age. It's part of life. Even children grow older every day. I have seen 68 summers but I refuse to remember the winters.

The secret of a happy life is to be useful. Get a part-time job. Develop a hobby. Do volunteer work in a hospital, nursing home or a place that helps delinquent or handicapped children.

Age represents knowledge and experience. The world needs you. Shut the door on uselessness and self-pity. When you help others you best serve yourself. Enjoy life. It's beautiful.--Betty

Dear Betty: your message has Wow-Power. Thanks for a piece of solid philosophy.

Bad news

Area residents west of Tanner on Route ZZ were surprised, and dismayed, by a small sign which someone put up over the weekend on a one-lane bridge on the road. A larger, more official-looking sign reading "Bridge Out" was erected late Monday night.

Steve Skalsky in 'Godspell'

SPRINGFIELD — Steve Skalsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Skalsky of Sikeston, 228 W. Murray Lane, will perform in the "Godspell" production Oct. 29 and 30 at Drury College.

The production is directed by Luis Ramirez of the Speech and Theater Department at Drury.

Ben Franklin said: "Beware of little expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship."

Canadian Settler

Canada's first engineer was also its first carpenter, plasterer, forester, mason, lumberman, archietect and conservationist and he was in Canada before the Indians. His name was Castor Canadensis or the Beaver. Quest for his fur in Canada caused wars and built business empires.

Lack of money causes under-maintained bridges

By Jim Kosowski
Missouri Press News

Because of a lack of state and county highway money, many bridges in Missouri are under-maintained and in some cases unsafe, say state and county highway officials.

In the past two years seven county bridges and one state bridge have collapsed. One man has been killed.

"In the counties, we have some 1,200 bridges which would be considered seriously deficient by any engineering standards," says Tony Heisberger of the Missouri Association of Counties.

"County courts have been forced to paint and pray because resources are not available to them to improve the bridge situation."

"It is getting to be a very critical situation. I just hope it doesn't take a school bus filled with 55 children falling into a river to improve the situation," Heisberger says.

The counties, he says, need legislation which would give them the flexibility to acquire revenues for improving county roads and bridges.

"Last year, $4.93 million was allocated to the counties on a formula basis from a Federal Discretionary Fund administered by the State Highway Department. This was a good start, but it will not get rid of the problem," Heisberger says.

"We do hope, however, that it will be the beginning of a revolving fund that would improve this critical situation," he says.

Spencer Thomas, Cole County Director of Highways, agrees.

"We have structures that are badly in need of repair," Thomas says. "They're not going to fall in tomorrow, but if some kind of program is not instituted in the near future we may be in a critical situation."

"In Cole County we got only $3,300 of the federal money. This was nice, but it's not enough to do anything major with our bridges," Thomas says.

Large capital investments needed for bridge replacement and repair are a major problem for the limited budgets of Missouri counties.

"Even if the counties got a bigger tax base, the counties can't bring their roads and bridges into the 20th century without cooperation from the state," Heisberger says. "We need a comprehensive program of bridge replacement and road tie-ins with the state supplementary network."

But the state is facing its own bridge problem.

Lack of funds at the state level is causing a backlog for the bridge maintenance department, says Bob Gevecker, bridge maintenance engineer.

"Much of the maintenance we do on bridges involves throwing good money after bad. We have to repair bridges that really should be replaced. We end up wasting time and money on these bridges," Gevecker says.

Many bridge decks are beyond maintaining, but still are patched and put into service because money is not available to replace all the bridges needing replacement.

A bridge contract has just been awarded for a new bridge at Warsaw which was the site of a state bridge collapse earlier this year. The new bridge will cost $986,343.

With capital outlays in the hundreds of thousands and even millions of dollars for each new bridge built, the Highway Department often chooses to repair bridges that it cannot afford to replace.

By comparison to the cost of one new bridge, the entire budget for the 11 maintenance crews was $135 million.

The bridge maintenance division inspects every state bridge, 6,400 of them annually, along with about 2,800 culvert-type bridges which are inspected every two years.

Approximately half of these bridges are found to need some kind of repair, from cutting weeds to making superstructure repairs.

In fiscal 1974, 368 bridges had collision damage repaired, 1,679 had deck repairs, 72 required superstructure repairs while 214 had substructure work done.

Added to this were many miscellaneous repairs to handrails, curbs and light maintenance. Two hundred and sixty-two bridges required painting.

In 1973, one paint crew was converted into a repair crew because painting could be contracted out while the often complicated job of maintenance has to be done by specially trained and equipped state crews.

Right now, five crews do structural repairs while six crews are assigned to painting.

"We have a good staff for inspection of bridges and for maintenance," says Lyle McLaughlin, assistant chief engineer for the Highway Department.

"Roadwork and bridge maintenance is always a problem because it is a never-ending job. But I feel we are very conscientious in this area," McLaughlin says.

However, because of the growing backlog of maintenance jobs, Gevecker says another paint crew may need to be converted to maintenance.

Woman swims 28 miles in record time

NEW YORK (AP) — Diana Nyad swam 28 miles through the murky waters around Manhattan Island and then fell into a hot shower.

The 25-year-old New York University graduate made the swim Monday in 8 hours and 2 minutes, 54 minutes under the record set in 1927 by Byron Summers. It was a sunny day, with temperatures in the 70s. Water temperatures were 65 degrees.

Miss Nyad attempted the swim last month but stopped after 6 hours and 25 minutes because of cold, rainy weather.

Bad news

Area residents west of Tanner on Route ZZ were surprised, and dismayed, by a small sign which someone put up over the weekend on a one-lane bridge on the road. A larger, more official-looking sign reading "Bridge Out" was erected late Monday night.

Lack of money causes under-maintained bridges

By Jim Kosowski
Missouri Press News

Because of a lack of state and county highway money, many bridges in Missouri are under-maintained and in some cases unsafe, say state and county highway officials.

In the past two years seven county bridges and one state bridge have collapsed. One man has been killed.

"In the counties, we have some 1,200 bridges which would be considered seriously deficient by any engineering standards," says Tony Heisberger of the Missouri Association of Counties.

"County courts have been forced to paint and pray because resources are not available to them to improve the bridge situation."

"It is getting to be a very critical situation. I just hope it doesn't take a school bus filled with 55 children falling into a river to improve the situation," Heisberger says.

The counties, he says, need legislation which would give them the flexibility to acquire revenues for improving county roads and bridges.

"Last year, $4.93 million was allocated to the counties on a formula basis from a Federal Discretionary Fund administered by the State Highway Department. This was a good start, but it will not get rid of the problem," Heisberger says.

"We do hope, however, that it will be the beginning of a revolving fund that would improve this critical situation," he says.

Spencer Thomas, Cole County Director of Highways, agrees.

"We have structures that are badly in need of repair," Thomas says. "They're not going to fall in tomorrow, but if some kind of program is not instituted in the near future we may be in a critical situation."

"In Cole County we got only $3,300 of the federal money. This was nice, but it's not enough to do anything major with our bridges," Thomas says.

Large capital investments needed for bridge replacement and repair are a major problem for the limited budgets of Missouri counties.

"Even if the counties got a bigger tax base, the counties can't bring their roads and bridges into the 20th century without cooperation from the state," Heisberger says. "We need a comprehensive program of bridge replacement and road tie-ins with the state supplementary network."

But the state is facing its own bridge problem.

Lack of funds at the state level is causing a backlog for the bridge maintenance department, says Bob Gevecker, bridge maintenance engineer.

"Much of the maintenance we do on bridges involves throwing good money after bad. We have to repair bridges that really should be replaced. We end up wasting time and money on these bridges," Gevecker says.

Many bridge decks are beyond maintaining, but still are patched and put into service because money is not available to replace all the bridges needing replacement.

A bridge contract has just been awarded for a new bridge at Warsaw which was the site of a state bridge collapse earlier this year. The new bridge will cost $986,343.

With capital outlays in the hundreds of thousands and even millions of dollars for each new bridge built, the Highway Department often chooses to repair bridges that it cannot afford to replace.

By comparison to the cost of one new bridge, the entire budget for the 11 maintenance crews was $135 million.

The bridge maintenance division inspects every state bridge, 6,400 of them annually, along with about 2,800 culvert-type bridges which are inspected every two years.

Approximately half of these bridges are found to need some kind of repair, from cutting weeds to making superstructure repairs.

In fiscal 1974, 368 bridges had collision damage repaired, 1,679 had deck repairs, 72 required superstructure repairs while 214 had substructure work done.

Added to this were many miscellaneous repairs to handrails, curbs and light maintenance. Two hundred and sixty-two bridges required painting.

In 1973, one paint crew was converted into a repair crew because painting could be contracted out while the often complicated job of maintenance has to be done by specially trained and equipped state crews.

Right now, five crews do structural repairs while six crews are assigned to painting.

"We have a good staff for inspection of bridges and for maintenance," says Lyle McLaughlin, assistant chief engineer for the Highway Department.

"Roadwork and bridge maintenance is always a problem because it is a never-ending job. But I feel we are very conscientious in this area," McLaughlin says.

However, because of the growing backlog of maintenance jobs, Gevecker says another paint crew may need to be converted to maintenance.

Woman swims 28 miles in record time

NEW YORK (AP) — Diana Nyad swam 28 miles through the murky waters around Manhattan Island and then fell into a hot shower.

The 25-year-old New York University graduate made the swim Monday in 8 hours and 2 minutes, 54 minutes under the record set in 1927 by Byron Summers. It was a sunny day, with temperatures in the 70s. Water temperatures were 65 degrees.

Miss Nyad attempted the swim last month but stopped after 6 hours and 25 minutes because of cold, rainy weather.

Room and board fund increased for prisoners

BENTON — The Scott County Court received word Monday that an increase from $4 a day to $8 a day will be given for room and board for each federal prisoner held in the county jail.

Of this amount, the sheriff will receive $1.60 per day to feed each prisoner; the rest is for lodging.

County Treasurer Hess Porter, reported receipt of a $46,866 check for the county's share of federal revenue-sharing funds for the period covering July, August and September.

Nearly 200 on MAPPS task forces

JEFFERSON CITY - Nearly 200 Missouri citizens are serving as task force members in the development of a Missouri Action Plan for Public Safety, according to Public Safety Director Mike Garrett.

"We are extremely grateful for the time and talent contributed by these individuals." Garrett said. "It is my hope that their work will make a significant contribution to the prevention, detection and prosecution of crime and to the improved administration of justice in Missouri".

Since the Governor's Conference on Public Safety in July, 193 individuals, including elected officials, criminal justice leaders and private citizens, have been meeting to propose specific recommendations and plans of action for the improvement of Missouri's criminal justice system.

The six task forces are entering their final weeks of deliberation, and will soon present the results of their work to citizens of the state through a series of public hearings to be held at various locations throughout Missouri.

The hearings will provide the public an opportunity to comment on task force recommendations before such recommendations are finalized.

Recommendations made by each task force will provide a basis for action in the following areas: police, courts,

Jobless insurance taxes to increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri businesses will be required to pay increased unemployment insurance taxes beginning Jan. 1 because of trigger mechanisms in the unemployment compensation law, according to Geoffrey McCarron, director of the Missouri Department of Labor.

The new rates, which represent a 70 per cent increase in employer assessments, result from more jobless workers taking advantage of unemployment benfits and 25 per cent increase in the benefit amounts.

"The first revenues generated by the increased rates will not be collected until April, 1976. Because of this cash flow problem, our projections indicate the fund may be unable to meet its obligations sometime next spring which will require the UI (unemployment insurance) trust fund to borrow from the federal government," McCarron said Friday.

More than 85,000 businesses in the state participate in the unemployment compensation program and are assessed a certain amount based on a series of complex calculations that take into consideration over-all unemployment in the state as well as the individual firm's incidence of laying off owrkers.

McCarron said that during the first eight months of 1975 employer contributions amounted to $85.6 million, while the amount of benefits disbursed totaled $183.5 million.

"I forsee the possibility of a $10 million to $20 million revenue shortfall in calendar 1976, given continued depressed economic conditions," McCarron said.

Last December, when Missouri's fund was rated among the 19 solvent funds in the nation and before high unemployment and increased jobless benefits hit, the unemployment compensation trust fund stood at $240 million.

At the end of August, the fund totaled $143.9 million—a $96 million reduction in just eight months.

The department has estimated that the benefits paid this year will be more than two and one-half times the amount paid out in 1974 and nearly four times that of 1973.

The increased assessment to employers is automatic. The law says that if the fund balance of Dec. 31 is not equal to two times the amount of benefits or twice the amount of assessments collected in any year the program has operated, individual employer contribution rates will increase.

Kelly to return to his Missouri hometown

HOUSTON, Mo. (AP) — Emmett Kelly, one of the world's greatest circus clowns, will return to his hometown of Houston, Mo., Saturday, Oct.11, to attend the formal dedication of a city roadside park named in his honor.

Kelly was born in Kansas and moved to the Houston area when he was six years old. He has always claimed Houston as his hometown.

As the sad-faced clown,"Weary Willie," Kelly's career climbed into the circle of top circus acts, night club performances, fairs, motions pictues and commercials.

Kelly, who now resides in Sarasota, Fla., was told his fellow citizens wish to honor him not as "Weary Willie" but as the former townsman.

In Scott County cancer drive

Contributions top $3,000

Annual reports received at the Southeast Missouri Area American Cancer Society office indicate a total of $86,923 was contributed to the Southeast Missouri '75 Cancer Crusade which concluded Aug. 31. According to a recent audit at the ACS Missouri Division Office in Jefferson City, this is the largest amount every contributed in any annual crusade in the history of the society in this area.

Scott County is one of the 16 counties in the Southeast Missouri area of the society. Clem Beal, 615 Elm St., the county unit treasurer, reported total crusade contributions for Scott County to be $3,036. Beal was chairman of the crusade last year.

The climax of the '75 Cancer Crusade will be the Missouri Division annual meeting of the society to be held at the Jefferson City Ramada Inn Oct. 18 and 19. Indications are that Southeast Missouri will be well represented at the society's statewide meeting.

Nobel peace prize candidates discussed

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Committee has discussed 50 candidates for this year's peace prize, including Spanish Roman Catholic priest Luis Maria Xirinachs, a fighter for political peace in Spain, and Russian dissident Andrei Sakharov, informed sources said.

The priest, 43, has long been a thorn in the side of Spain's authoritarian ruler Gen. Francisco Franco. He campaigns nonviolently for restoration of civil rights and has been jailed three times.

Officials in Madrid reported Tuesday that Father Xirinachs has been released from the Madrid Carabanchel prison after serving a two-year term for illegal propaganda. During his terms in jail, he spent long periods on hunger strikes.

Tim Greve, director of the Nobel Institute says a large campaign is under way in Spain to gain support for Father Xirinachs' selection.

"Ready-printed post cards (supporting Father Xirinachs) have flooded the institute," Greve said. "We have got thousands of them recently."

It was not known if those qualified to nominate are behind the Spanish priest. Only members of the Nobel Committee, institute consultants, government officials, some university professors and former peace prize-winners are qualified to nominate.

Eight Swedish parliamentarians have suggested selection of the Soviet nuclear physicist Sakharov, saying "Sakharov stands up as a uniting symbol for peace efforts in the Soviet Union with the aim of increasing understanding among all people of the world".

The Norwegian Nobel Committee, composed of five men and the woman chairman, is expected to announce the peace prize winner in the next week or two. The Nobel prizes for medicine, physics, chemistry and literature are awarded in Sweden.

The committee is not allowed to give information on the persons or insitutions nominated. But those making the nominations often reveal the names. The prize money this year, which goes with the Nobel gold medal and diploma, is a record $140,000 or 14 per cent higher than last year.

Nominations were in by last Feb. 1. A survey of press reports this year shows that besides Sakharov and Father Xirinacs the nominated candidates include Finnish President Urho Kekkonen; Yugoslav-born Mother Theresa, the leader of the Mission of Charity in India; the International Press Institute — IPI; the Inter-American Childrens' Institute in Uruguay, and the international Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts organizations.

School employe numbers jump

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The number of Missouri public school employes jumped more than 50 per cent in the 10-year period ending last year, while attendance at the schools grew at only a 13 per cent rate during the same time, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported Tuesday.

Public school employes numbered 59,700 in Missouri in 1964 while there were 89,788 in the state last year.

"In the last three years of the 10-year period, attendance has declined, but public school employment has continued to increase," the survey said. It based its statement on figures supplied by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The rapid growth in the number of public school employes was only one example the survey gave in its report on how expanding state and local governments are allegedly threatening Missourians with a tax increase.

Using additional statistics from the Census Bureau, the Missouri Division of Accounting, Division of Employment Security and other sources, the survey reported:

—The number of state and local government employes has increased from 137,400 in October of 1964 to 204,594 in the same month last year —a 48.9 per cent increase, while the state's population increased only 8.3 per cent.

—The state payroll rose from $64.4 million to $542.2 million— an increase of nearly 230 per cent.

—Local government employes' payrolls swelled 167 per cent to $1.4 billion.

While the expanding numbers of public school teachers accounted for the greatest increase in the number of local public employes, in state government the greatest increase in the number of employes and payroll were in higher education and welfare, the survey reported.

In higher education, employment grew from 7,300 in 1964 to 14,593 last year, nearly an increase of 100 per cent. Payroll went from $46.5 million to $176.1 million, an increasee of 279 per cent.

In state welfare oprations, employment grew from 2,400 to 5,667, while payroll for those workers swelled 333 per cent to $41.6 million.

Getting the drop on tomorrow's weather

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Ford and Congress are overlooking major payoffs in dollar savings, energy conservation and increased food and mineral production that might be realized through rapid development of specialized space data gathering systems.

A study by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences notes that space systems could immeasurably improve weather forecasts and make important reductions in the $500 million a year weather-caused cargo and shipping losses.

Space-based navigation could so improve routing that the U.S. shipping fleet could save appreciable amounts of the $450 million now spent each year for fuel in trans-Atlantic services alone.

An estimated $8 billion plus a year of time could be saved by instituting a worldwide agricultural survey using satellites, aircraft and ground-based systems — the savings coming from improved output, distribution and lower costs.

Space-based remote sensing, added to conventional data collection, could save a significant part of the $1.2 billion the current national inventory of water resources is expected to cost.

Only space monitoring can provide an accurate, cost-feasible ongoing checkup on air and water pollution and the shift of concentrations from one point to another on a sufficiently wide basis to be of value. Without satellites, it is difficult indeed to measure the effectiveness of area pollution control systems.

Without an appropriate vigorous satellite program it will be impossible to accumulate data in time to determine whether certain aerosol sprays are depleting the ozone layer and endangering our future health.

Space surveys are no substitute for prospecting. But they can, by mapping geological faults and other features, put the finger on hitherto unsuspected targets of opportunity for those seeking petroleum, metal ores and other minerals.

Example — A large-scale mosaic, made from satellite data has revealed previously unrecognized details of an east-west fault associated with the Colorado mineral belt, opening new exploration possibilities.

Satellite warning systems provide the only feasible possibility for assessment of danger sufficiently early to cope with a variety of serious floods and storms.

Satellite-provided data on rain and snowfall, snow cover and the rate of snow melting, are essential for the efficient operation of hydroelectric power plants and conservation of water supplies.

With these necessities staring them in the face, Mr. Ford and Congress have moved at a laggard's pace.

It is true the Landsat series of satellites, calculated to aid in the development of earth resources, is being expanded. But only after a major fight that threatened to kill off most practical aspects of the program, and, for a period, condemned the project to movement at a snail's pace.

Girl saves father with 'kiss of life'

VENTNOR, N.J. (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Lyn Kraft learned in health class how to give "the kiss of life" to a plastic doll. That same night she used what she had learned to revive her 50-year-old father after he suffered a heart attack and stopped breathing.

Leonard Kraft is now recuperating in the Atlantic City Medical Center, and Lyn is the toast of her eighth grade class at Ventnor Middle School in this Atlantic shore community.

It was after midnight last Thursday when the 5-foot-7, 165-pound Kraft suffered the second heart attack of his life.

"He stopped breathing and turned a purple-gray color. I ran and called the ambulance and woke up my daughter," Lyn's mother, Sandy, said.

Lyn, a 5-foot, 89-pounder, said her mother was "very excited.

"I said I knew what to do, and she said to do it. I didn't have any time to pause. I just did it right there. It was just a reaction."

Lyn followed the method forcardiopulmonary respiration that school nurse Marie Paludi had been teaching in class for two weeks.

She gave four quick breaths into her father's mouth, holding his nose and leaning his head back to open the air passages. Then she gave 15 heart compressions, with palms down and fingertips up, in the middle of his chest, then two more deep breaths slowly, waiting for the chest to deflate.

"My sister, Sindy, helped me. She told me I was going too fast with the compressions," said Lyn, the youngest of four children.

Sindy, 17, and Mrs. Kraft were the only other family members at home.

Lyn continued the cycle of two breaths and 15 compressions for five minutes until an ambulance crew arrived and administered oxygen to her father, who was already breathing again.

"His color came back" as soon as Lyn began to work, Mrs. Kraft said. "I really believe it saved his life."

Thefts reported

Thefts reported today by police include money , a tire, calculator and antenna.

Two bottles filled with change were taken from the bedroom of Nellie Hardin home, 850 Tanner St., between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. Friday, police said today.

The bottles were valued at $16 and contained $35 in change.

A pickup truck tire was taken from Jackie Towe, 415 William St., between 2 p.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. Sunday. The tire, valued at $32, was next to the garage when it was taken.

A calculator owned by David Blackburn, 418 Marian St., was taken from a desk drawer at Missouri Delta Community Hospital between noon and 7 p.m. Sunday. The calculator was valued at $17.

A citizens band antenna was taken from a car owned by Howard Overton, 411 Jackson St., last Thursday or Fridav.

Center for Free Enterprise

This new $1.3 million Missouri Center for Free Enterprise is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy in the spring of 1977. The building, to be located at 428 E. Capitol Ave. in Jefferson City, was created to foster through educational activities a better awareness of the benefits of the free enterprise system. The facility was designed to provide a base for continuing and expanding educational programs such as the Heart-of-America Citizenship Forum, Missouriana studytours for teachers, college business symposiums, high school business symposiums, clergy economic education workshops and Missouri Freedom Forum. The Missouri Chamber of Commerce will also establish its offices in the center.

Urologist reports technique may reverse vasectomy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A urologist reports a new surgical technique initially has proven effective in reversing vasectomy — an operation once considered almost synonymous with lifelong sterility.

Dr. Sherman J. Silber reported Tuesday that the first 24 patients who underwent the operation now register a normal sperm count and 16 of their wives have gotten pregnant.

Silber, assistant professor of urology at the University of California Medical Center and chief of urology at the Veteran's Administration Hospital here, said the new surgical technique utilizes a 40-power microscope, nylon thread so slender it is invisible to the naked eye, and knives, forceps and other surgical tools honed so finely their points are barely visible.

The microsurgery techniques are used to rejoin the male sperm ducts which are severed in vasectomy — a relatively simple, inexpensive and effective birth control operation which about a million American men undergo each year.

Vasectomy patients are routinely warned beforehand that they probably will never be able to conceive children again. To date, the average success rate for conventional surgical reversal techniques has been about 30 per cent.

Silber says his results appear to make vasectomy a more viable means of birth control and predicted an upsurge in both vasectomies and reversals.

SHADI GROWS HIS RUGS

EL CERRITO, Calif. (AP) — Colorful flowers make the designs in three Persian rugs and one old-fashioned quilt in the hillside garden of Sundar Shadi. More than 8,000 plants were used to create living rugs and a quilt. There are 35 different plant varieties and the quilt has five kinds of marigolds. The Persian rugs all have different borders and designs.

It has not been an easy nor an inexpensive hobby, however. Shadi uses about 35 pounds of snail pellets to protect the fragile plants and has had to eliminate about six gophers who were chewing holes in the "rugs." A further expense is the plants themselves. He buys flats from the nursery so they will all be blooming at the same time. They usually cost around $500 to $600 for this summer project.

Shadi has lived in the same place since 1935. During the holiday season he features Christmas scenes which attract thousands and create a traffic jam of viewers.

Silber, assistant professor of urology at the University of California Medical Center and chief of urology at the Veteran's Administration Hospital here, said the new surgical technique utilizes a 40-power microscope, nylon thread so slender it is invisible to the naked eye, and knives, forceps and other surgical tools honed so finely their points are barely visible.

The microsurgery techniques are used to rejoin the male sperm ducts which are severed in vasectomy — a relatively simple, inexpensive and effective birth control operation which about a million American men undergo each year.

Vasectomy patients are routinely warned beforehand that they probably will never be able to conceive children again. To date, the average success rate for conventional surgical reversal techniques has been about 30 per cent.

Silber says his results appear to make vasectomy a more viable means of birth control and predicted an upsurge in both vasectomies and reversals.

SHADI GROWS HIS RUGS

EL CERRITO, Calif. (AP) — Colorful flowers make the designs in three Persian rugs and one old-fashioned quilt in the hillside garden of Sundar Shadi. More than 8,000 plants were used to create living rugs and a quilt. There are 35 different plant varieties and the quilt has five kinds of marigolds. The Persian rugs all have different borders and designs.

It has not been an easy nor an inexpensive hobby, however. Shadi uses about 35 pounds of snail pellets to protect the fragile plants and has had to eliminate about six gophers who were chewing holes in the "rugs." A further expense is the plants themselves. He buys flats from the nursery so they will all be blooming at the same time. They usually cost around $500 to $600 for this summer project.

Shadi has lived in the same place since 1935. During the holiday season he features Christmas scenes which attract thousands and create a traffic jam of viewers.

One-third of the world reserves of manganese ores, essential in the manufacture of steel, lie in the Soviet Union.

Physician discoveries possible link between sickle cell anemia and lead traces in body

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A visiting Nigerian physician at the University of Missouri has discovered a possible link between sickle cell anemia and traces of lead in the body.

Dr. David Olatumbosum determined that hairs from Nigerian children with the disease contained 10 to 100 times more lead than those of Nigerian children without sickle cell anemia.

"It's an interesting lead, but it's in a very preliminary stage — too early, of course, for saying there is a relationship between lead and sickle cell anemia," said Dr. James Vogt, associate director of the university's Environmental Trace Substances Research Center.

Dr. Olatumbosum returned to Nigeria early this week after three months of study at the center.

Dr. Vogt said Olatumbosum was to continue studying the development and the staff was anticipating a report from the Nigerian on his return to Columbia next June.

Prior to his departure, Dr. Olaltumbosom said establishing a cause of the increased lead content and how it relates to sickle cell anemia "will be my immediate priority when I get back."

The discovery was accidental, Dr. Vogt said.

Dr. Olatumbosum had brought with him to Columbia hair strands to use in learning to operate various machines at the center.

One group was from healthy Nigerians; the other from children with sickle cell anemia.

Sickle cell anemia, an ultimately fatal disease that almost exclusively afflicts blacks, is a defect in hemoglobin, the pigment of red blood cells which supply oxygen to the body.

Dr. Olatumbosom said about 2 per cent of Nigerians have the disease.

State health officials are midway through gathering blood, urine and hair samples from children living around the three lead smelters in southeast Missouri, the world's largest lead district.

That survey of up to 300 children is aimed at determining if living in the area of a lead smelter makes a person susceptible to having higher than normal levels of lead and other heavy metals in their bodies. It will not attempt to determine the relationship between metal levels and various diseases.

The Missuouri survey is part of a nationwide federally-financed effort and officials say the results may be available at the end of the year.
